COL. COOLIDGE SUFFERS NAUSEA ATTACK

Fishermen Died in Bunks, Liner Reports

15 SENT DOWN WITH SHIP WHILE ASLEEP; CRASH IN HEAVY FOG

New York, June 29 (A.P.).—Most of the fifteen men who lost their lives when the fishing schooner Rex was rammed and sunk by the steamship Tuscania east of Halifax were trapped in their bunks, Captain Bone of the Tuscania informed his head offices in a wireless today.

"The collision occurred early Sunday morning in fog," said the captain's message.

"Tuscania suddenly heard horn bell ahead, and before helm took effect struck schooner amidships. She sank immediately. Tuscania stopped near wreckage and lowered boat, picking up nine survivors.

PORTLAND GUNS BOOM AS GOVERNORS ARRIVE

Washington, June 29 (A.P.)—The dirigible Shenandoah notified the Navy Department today that it planned to leave on its trip to Maine Friday. It will go direct from Lakehurst to Bar Harbor and tie up at the mast of the feodor Petrka.

Portland, Me., June 29 (A.P.)—Welcomed by State and city, nearly a score of chief executives, with their wives and members of their staffs, were received at the State pier today upon their arrival from New York for the annual session of the Governors' conference at Poland Spring.

As the Calvin Austin of the Eastern Steamship Lines, Inc., entered the main ship channel the visitors were saluted with a roar of guns at Fort Williams, followed by the shrieking of whistles on all manner

QUINN INDICTED IN SWAMPSCOTT CASE

Salem, June 29.—Indictments charging bribery in connection with illegal rum running at Little's Point, Swampscott, were returned today by the Essex County Grand Jury against former Police Chief William J. Quinn of Swampscott and four others.

The indictment targainst Quinn, reported to Judge Quinn in Salem Superior Court, contained two counts of bribery.

Harry Browne of Lynn, whose former alleged sweetheart, Mrs. Gertrude L. Hanna, was a principal witness before the Grand Jury, was indicted in six counts of bribery.

Former Motorcycle Officer Frank Prideaux was indicted in one count, former Patrolman F. Blaine Kehoe in two counts, and Patrick A. McDonald of Brookline, owner of the Johnson estate where liquor is alleged to have been landed and stored was indicted in one count.

All five men under indictment are also under fire in Federal court in connection with the same alleged rum running.

The Grand Jury, in special sitting, also heard today eight witnesses in the probe of alleged graft and inefficiency in the Lawrence police department. Most of the eight are said to be former Lawrence bootleggers.

Commissioner of Public Safety Harry W. Marshall of Lawrence was at the court house and it was understood he would be a Grand Jury witness.

SHOP KEEPER LOCKED UP; THUGS TAKE $247

Counting up the money left over the week-end in the safe of the H. & B. Tea Store, Highland avenue, West Somerville, Joseph Heller, the proprietor, had just made a neat little pile of $247 in currency today when two customers entered.

"A bottle of tonic," said the taller of the two. Heller turned to get it.

When he turned back to the counter he found a pearl handled revolver shoved flush against the fourth button on his vest.

The thugs backed the store proprietor to the washroom, and locked him in there.

Returning to the store, they partly

JOHN COOLIDGE MEETS PARENTS AT LUDLOW

COOL WESTERLY BREEZE FOR BOSTON TOMORROW

Conditions that have given Boston a pre-season spell of "dog day" weather are passing. The outlook is good for a bright, cool day tomorrow, with dry westerly winds, according to the weather bureau. There is a slight disturbance that is causing rains in the Ohio Valley and may cause local showers in Boston late today, but the indications are that it will be generally fair in this vicinity for twenty-four hours. There is no intensely hot weather in sight.

2 STAGINGS COLLAPSE, FIVE WORKMEN HURT

Five workmen were injured and four others hung suspended in air until rescued in two staging collapses in Roxbury and East Boston today.

When the staging upon which they were mixing mortar at the new East Boston High School building collapsed four workmen fell twenty feet.

Pasquale Panzinto of No. 139 Princeton street and John Gallow of No. 287 Princeton street were taken to the East Boston Relief Hospital. The others escaped injury.

Four other men hung to the swaying timbers until a ladder was placed to save them.

John Daly, Patrick Collins and Charles Nelson, roofers, fell thirty feet when a staging on the house at No. 5 Akron street, Roxbury, collapsed.

Daly was taken to the City Hospital, where his name is on the danger list. Collins and Nelson were treated for minor injuries.

CHALLENGES COURT IN LOTTA WILL CASE

Attorney Grover Cleveland Spillers of Oklahoma City, Okla., vigorously protested against the procedure in the Crabtree will case at the opening of hearings in the $5,000,000 contest today before Judge Prest in Suffolk Probate Court.

Attorney Spillers represents Mrs. Ida Manning Blankenburg, who claims to be a daughter of Lotta Crabtree. She is on her way to Boston and will be in court Wednesday.

"You are putting the cart before the horse," declared Spillers, addressing Judge Prest, before a courtroom filled with prominent Boston attorneys who showed amusement at his outburst.

DRY AGENCY FORCES SLASHED IN NEW PLAN

Washington, June 29 (I.N.S.).—Retired and former United States army and navy officers may form the backbone of the administration's new prohibition enforcement system, it was learned at the treasury today.

General L. C. Andrews, field marshal of prohibition, who is reorganizing enforcement under plans approved by President Coolidge, announced that, qualifications being equal, he will select ex-military men as district administrators in preference to civilians.

Washington, June 29.—A sweeping reduction in the mobile prohibition forces and the dropping of 400 persons from the Washington prohibition headquarters personnel is planned under the newly ordered decentralization program of the Treasury Department.

PRESIDENT TOLD TO WATCH FATHER FOR WEAKENING OF HEART

Plymouth, Vt., June 29.—After a comfortable night and a morning, during which his condition was said to be much improved, Colonel John Coolidge suffered from an attack of nausea shortly before noon today.

The President rushed his son John in a White House machine for Major James C. Coupal, quartered in a farmhouse near the village, the two returning within a few minutes.

After a brief stay in the sickroom the physician reappeared on the front porch, apparently satisfied there was no danger, and conversed with President and Mrs. Coolidge and Attorney-General Sargent, who had come over from Ludlow.

A few minutes later Dr. A. M. Cram of Bridgewater, the sick man's physician, arrived, and was informed of what had happened. He visited the sickroom and after a few minutes came out, remarking that it was not serious and that "everything so far is satisfactory."

BLIND WOMAN RESCUED IN SUSPICIOUS FIRE

Springfield, June 29.—A blind woman, forgotten in the excitement and overcome by smoke, was rescued and twenty-five families, totalling nearly 150 persons, fled their beds today in a fire at No. 24 Ferry street.

The fire, starting in the store of Fred Zitter, on the first floor of the apartment block, filled the apartments with thick smoke, but desperate efforts of the firemen prevented the flames from eating upward.

Mrs. Mary Martin, sixty-five and blind, was forgotten in the excitement and fell in her third floor kitchen, overcome by smoke. Firemen, making sure that all were out of the building, found her prostrate form on the floor and carried her to safety.

During the height of the blaze, the police afterward were told, two unidentified men engaged in a fight near the apartment block, each accusing the other of having started the fire.

The fire caused damage set at $3,000.

GLOUCESTER IN MOURNING FOR 15 LOST IN LINER CRASH

...s of crew, numbering twenty-four.

"Loss of life largely due to fact most men below sleeping or preparing for work, and schooner sinking immediately.

"Every effort made to search vicinity. Tuscania remaining four hours, but no other survivors found. Everything presently done to comfort survivors, and master's body being brought in. Survivors all well except Edward Surette head injury."

Gloucester Sets Flags at Half-Staff for Lost Seamen

Gloucester, June 29.—A pall of grief and sorrow hung over Gloucester ... all the flags in the city are at half-staff. In the churches services are being held for the hardy fishermen who were hurled to their death by the onrushing liner, as they slept in their bunks.

Details of the tragedy will not be known until the Tuscania docks. Her captain has sent a brief dispatch to the owners of the schooner, Dick Brothers, but this message gives only the most meager details.

LIST OF DEAD

The list of dead and the survivors, as sent by wireless from the Tuscania, follows:

Thomas O. Downey of Lowell, master of the Rex.

Austin Firth of Gloucester, schooner's cook, and his ten-year-old son, Charles.

Samuel Tibbetts.
Angus MacDonald.
Charles Goodick.
W. M. Roach.
Archibald Hill.
Clyde Larkin.
George Johnson.
Angus Smith.
Joseph Dalton.
Oscar Williams.
M. W. Turner, Shelburne, N. S.
Charles Wiebell, address not given.

RESCUED

James O'Brien, Edgar Meuse, Donald Grady, Ralph Clayton, Thomas Flannigan, Edward Frelick, Edward Surrette, Engineer Albert Roberts, and a man whose name is given as Alfred Dornet, all of Gloucester. No Alfred Dornet was listed in the owners' crew list, but there was an Alfred Hubbard who is unaccounted for.

The schooner, which sailed for the Quero Banks for halibut fishing, two weeks ago carried twenty-two men and one of the cook aboard.

The banks are about 100 miles off Cape Race and in the northern steamship lane.

The Rex, just hull almost filled with halibut, was anchored for the night. Within a day or two it was planned to start for home.

It was about 2 a. m., with only the members of the watch on deck, when the liner was sighted through the fog, bearing down on the helpless craft. Members of the watch shouted to the sleeping crew below, and then leaped into the sea.

The sharp steel prow of the liner cut the little schooner in two. The men asleep in their bunks were caught like rats in a trap. The liner stopped as quickly as possible and lowered boats.

NINE MEN RESCUED.

Nine men were alive and were rescued and taken to the liner, numb from the cold. As the wreckage of the schooner sank, many of the bodies of the crew floated to the surface. Among the first bodies rescued was that of Captain Dornet.

The captain of the Tuscania has refused to send any additional details of the accident over the radio save those contained in his brief report to the owners of the schooner. He will likely make a complete statement as soon as the ship is docked.

Arrangements have been made to have the survivors and the bodies of the little schooner's dead taken off the Tuscania docks as possible.

of craft as the steamer passed through the harbor and docked exactly on time.

At the pier, which was crowded with people, was stationed the Fifth Infantry band, which, during the World War, was with the American army of occupation at Coblenz.

YOUNG ROSS THERE.

The members of the party had a rough trip, particularly off Block Island, and some of them from the inland States were victims of seasickness, but they soon forgot this in the warm sunshine which followed yesterday's rain here.

One of the liveliest members of the party was Bradford Ross, twelve-year-old son of Mrs. Nellie T. Ross, Governor of Wyoming, who was placed in care of Governor Ralph O. Brewster of Maine, who met the Governors in New York. Mrs. Ross accompanied Governor and Mrs. John G. Winant of New Hampshire by motor from New York.

Bradford was with Governor Brewster and accompanied him into the dining room at the Congress Square Hotel, where breakfast was served.

$1,000 FROM FLORIDA.

The members of the party were up early, anxious to catch a glimpse of the Pine Tree State, in which they will be guests for a week. They were taken in automobiles, one of which was assigned to each State and carried the flag of that State, to the hotel for breakfast.

A surprise feature of the breakfast, given under the direction of the Portland Chamber of Commerce, was the announcement by Governor Brewster that the State of Florida had presented to the State of Maine $1,000 for the Maine Publicity Bureau. On the steamer a check for this amount was handed to Governor Brewster by Commander Robert Gamble, Jr., in the name of Governor John W. Martin, on whose staff he is a member.

After the breakfast the Governors and others were taken by automobiles for a tour of the city, after which they enjoyed a 30-mile ride to the Poland Springs House, where the conference opens this afternoon.

Governor Alfred E. Smith of New York, who is to speak on the State budget late today at the Governors' conference, enjoyed a foursome on the golf links while waiting for the conference to open.

He played against Vincent B. Murphy, comptroller of New York, who is on his honeymoon, having been married on June 11 to Miss Margaret Palmer of Rochester, N. Y.

William F. Dee of Lynn, Mass., an old friend of Mr. Murphy, played with the Governor, while the latter's son, Arthur Smith, was Mr. Murphy's partner.

Governor John H. Trumbull of Connecticut, who arrived in advance of the other Governors, with Mrs. Trumbull and their daughters, Florence and Jean, also had a morning at golf.

Governors Insist Dry Law Is Here to Stay

Portland, Me., June 29 (I.N.S.).—As a scattered fleet of rum running craft appeared off the Maine coast today, Governors aboard the steamer Calvin Austin, en route from New York for the Governors' conference at Poland Springs, commented on the prohibition situation.

Governor Thomas G. McLeod, South Carolina: "The rum running and bootlegging business is being made unprofitable. I do not believe it will last long. The worst part of the violating of the prohibition act is that the so-called upper classes are doing the drinking."

Governor Ralph O. Brewster, Maine: "It is getting to be an academic question, instead of a controversial matter. Prohibition is accepted as a law universally and it's thorough enforcement is inevitable."

Governor John Hammill, Iowa: "America is dry at heart even though the East may not think so. In a few years prohibition will be enforced throughout the country."

Governor M. E. Trapp, Oklahoma: "Prohibition is here to stay. Of course some people will keep on drinking. If they weren't injuring themselves through strong alcoholic drinks they would be doing something else."

Governor John W. Martin, Florida: "The law must be enforced. Total prohibition will not come in three minutes or three years. We must remember people have been using alcohol drinks since before civilization began."

Three of the governors were making their first sea voyage. The trip was memorable for them as they fought gallantly for dignity at the rail of the rolling ship throughout most of the voyage.

MAN DROWNED AS HE SHIFTS CANOE SEATS

Manchester, N. H., June 29 (A.P.)—Shifting positions in a canoe at Pine Island Park cost Francois Leblanc, twenty-two, single, his life and may result in the death of Romeo Cote, who is on the danger list in a hospital. Cote was brought to the surface by Jerry Sullivan, life guard, and partially revived by the police pulmotor.

Celluloid Strips Dog Prisoner in House Thefts

Three celluloid strips, dogging John O'Keefe of West Newton street, South End, popped up before him today in Brighton Court, where he was held in $5,000 for the Grand Jury on a charge of breaking and entering the apartment of Algier M. Goodwin of No. 41 Strathmore road, Brighton, where the strips were found there.

A celluloid strip, tough but flexible, is used by housebreakers, police say, to slip in between door and jamb at the lock. The curved part of the catch being toward the outside, the celluloid forces the catch back into the door, performing the same office as a key.

Captain Gustaf Gustafson, finger print expert, testified that on one of the strips he found a thumbprint corresponding to that of O'Keefe in a record in the identification bureau.

It was testified that in O'Keefe's rooms were found three dresses, identified by Mrs. Lucia Soule as stolen from her apartment at No. 7 Sutherland road, Brighton.

VOTE GENERAL STRIKE FOR BUILDERS

65 cents to a new rate of from 77½ to 80 cents.

Members of the United Building Trades Council, following the strike vote today, admitted frankly that 5 p. m. Wednesday had been set as the time to give the employers opportunity to meet the laborers' demands, or at least to effect some sort of compromise.

It had been reported that Secretary of Labor James J. Davis would come to Boston to take a hand in the strike and attempt a settlement.

The secretary was believed to be on his way to greet President Coolidge when the latter returns to the Summer White House at Swampscott.

U. S. AGENT BROWN ARRIVES.

This was denied, however, by C. D. Brown, Federal government labor agent with offices in Boston. Agent Brown said he had asked Washington for assistance in the Boston quarrel and that W. C. Liller, Federal agent in Pennsylvania, had arrived in Boston.

Meanwhile a special meeting of the board of councillors of the Building Trades Employers' Association was being held today at No. 1 Beacon street, with the employers insisting that they will stand firm on their refusal to arbitrate the question of the laborers' requested wage increase.

The builders assert that they will fight to the last ditch and that the strike will mark the end of union wage agreements in the Boston building trades for all time.

be under twenty-two administrators throughout the country, will employ 266 general agents, instead of the 900 now on the rolls.

Whether the 200 men will be selected from the present force or made up entirely of new men has not been decided, although the more efficient of those now employed will be absorbed into the new mobile staff.

These men will operate out of the administrator's headquarters as investigators, on big cases, and E. C. Yellowly, chief of general agents, probably will supervise their operations from Washington.

How the reorganization will affect the 1,000 prohibition agents now operating under State directors is yet to develop, but it is believed this staff also will be reduced materially.

The cut will be felt most severely in the three important divisions—law, permit and industrial alcohol—where some section heads as well as clerks and other employes are to be dropped.

Few of the central office employes are expected to be transferred.

DRIVER, 2 PASSENGERS, HURT IN AUTO CRASH

Three men were hurt today when an automobile driven by Peter Rycroft, Lexington, ran into the rear of a truck of the Shannon & Sons Company of Woburn. Mr. Rycroft had twenty stitches in his face and shoulders. James Roach, Lexington, who was riding with him, was cut and bruised. John McKenzie, also of Lexington, the other passenger, suffered a fracture of the hip. He was taken to the Massachusetts General Hospital.

CHALLENGE TO COURT JUDGE IN LOTTA CASE

determining that some of these contestants are heirs-at-law, it will be wasted time and money if you then turn around and say, in the following proceedings, that the will was properly made. After all your expenses nobody takes a dime except the beneficiaries originally named.

CHALLENGES DECISION.

"As far as my client is concerned, I would rather have you say in the first place that the will is valid and that no claimants will take anything regardless of the kinship they can prove. That saves time and money and presents the question squarely.

"I am ready to take a shot at the will first and let kinship proof follow."

Judge Prest replied that personally he sympathized with Attorney Spillers' contention, but judicially he could not alter the procedure. Hearings began on the motion of the executors to strike from the records all claimants, the burden of proof resting on contestants to prove their relationship to Lotta Crabtree.

Mrs. Annie S. Fretwell of San Francisco, recognized in the will as a cousin of the famous Boston actress, indirectly denied the claims of many of the fifty claimants when she testified that one one side of Lotta's family she is the only survivor.

COUSIN OF LOTTA.

She is a daughter of Thomas Livesey, brother of Lotta's mother.

Miss Sarah A. Crabtree, coming from Bacup, Lancashire, England, testified as regards the other branch of the family, related to Lotta through Lotta's father.

Mrs. Fretwell declared she visited Lotta's brother, John Ashworth Crabtree, when he lived with his wife, Mrs. Annie Harris Crabtree, on Thornton street, Roxbury.

Attorney Sherman L. Whipple, representing Mrs. Carlotta Cockburn of California, who contends she is John Crabtree's daughter, declared it was the first he had heard of Annie Harris Crabtree and he cross-examined the witness in detail about her meetings with Lotta's brother, beginning over forty years ago.

LIKE PICTURES OF OLD.

Like a picture out of an old book, Mrs. Fretwell sat on the witness stand, fanning herself with an old-fashioned figured fan.

She wore a long black silk skirt, reaching to the floor, and a short jacket reaching just below her waist. She is wealthy, has spent the last twenty-three years traveling and came here direct from Mexico City to testify.

Miss Crabtree also carried a fan and seemed entirely out of place amid her surroundings. Like Mrs. Fretwell, she is nearly seventy years old.

While it all was in progress, a score of persons waited for their cars at the Highland avenue stop across the street.

Heller lives at No. 83 Highland avenue, Chelsea. It took him ten minutes to make enough noise to get himself released.

Some time between 5 and 8 o'clock the office of a gas filling station at Mystic avenue and the Fellaway was entered and a small sum of money was taken.

Entrance was gained through a window which was not securely fastened.

SILVA HELD IN BAIL OF $25,000

Doctor Denies Guilt in Larceny of $42,679; Hearing Set for July 9

Dr. Severo P. Silva, who has offices at No. 6 Beacon street, was arraigned in Municipal Court today charged with the larceny of $42,679 from Charles A. Worcester, broker, Room 233, Old South Building.

He pleaded not guilty and was held in $25,000 for hearing on July 9. Inspector Dorsey asked for time.

He said he understood that Dr. Silva had swindled banks and individuals out of close to $150,000 by the same scheme he is alleged to have used on Worcester.

The police says his scheme was to borrow large sums, pretending he had big orders for drug supplies but lacked capital.

Those lending him money were to receive big interest, according to the police. Later it is alleged, they would find the orders only in his imagination.

WALES SEES PARADE OF WILD MAN COSTUMES

Palapye, Bechuanaland, South Africa, June 29 (A.P.).—The gravity of countenance which the Prince of Wales must assume on formal occasions was seriously taxed during a review of native Bechuana warriors at Sewore.

The natives appeared in the most outlandish costumes, proudly displaying their cherished garments regardless of effect. Some were discarded London police helmets, others tartan kilts, and others old "bearskins" or fur hats which form part of the uniforms of some British regiments.

The prize outfit was that of a chief in a British hussar busby, the mess jacket of an officer of the British foot guards, and golf knickers.

BRICKBOTTON CAFE OWNER CONVICTED

A jury in Middlesex Superior Court today brought in a sealed verdict of guilty in the case of Peter Patalano, one of the Brickbottom liquor defendants.

Patalano was the alleged proprietor of the Little Paris cafe, concerning which it was testified that students and girls were frequent visitors on wild parties.

Attorney William R. Scharton, counsel for Patalano, took exceptions to some of this testimony and announced he would argue for stay of sentence this afternoon, when sentence was to be imposed. He was also to argue in the cases of Jennie Kipian and Isaac Burley, on the ground that trying them together was prejudicial.

CURSE OF GEMS IS DEFIED

Former Wife of U. S. Senator Gerry Is Married to B. Sumner Welles

The curse of the black pearls of the Romanoffs has again been defied by their owner, the beautiful Mathilda Townsend Gerry, divorced wife of United States Senator Peter Goelet Gerry, of Rhode Island.

Announcement of her marriage to B. Sumner Welles, Harvard graduate, diplomat and the former husband of the former Esther Slater of Webster, heiress to the Slater mill millions, revealed that the divorce proceedings instituted by Mrs. Gerry in Paris some months ago were successful.

ADMIRED BY SARGENT.

The announcement was received with surprise in the exclusive social circles of Boston, New York and Washington, where both Welles and his bride have long been prominent.

Those superstitiously inclined today are wondering whether or not the ill-luck of the black pearls, owned by the bride will hold good and whether the baleful influence of the gems will fail in function and permit the present romance to continue happily through the years to come.

Wooed by the nobility of Europe, by captains of industry and dashing military men of the United States, the now Mrs. Welles has long been one of the social leaders in Washington. At the time of her debut she was described by John Singer Sargent as "the most beautiful woman in America." A portrait of the beauty by Sargent won a noted prize for the artist.

HAPPY FOR 14 YEARS.

The Duke of Alva, cousin to the King of Spain, Jerome Bonaparte and Archie Butt, military aide to President Roosevelt who lost his life on the Titanic, were among those who paid ardent but fruitless court at the shrine of the Washington beauty, but her heart was finally won by Peter Gerry, young sportsman and bluebood.

The couple was prominent in the social whirl of the capitals of the world and at New York. Then the husband went in for politics in Rhode Island and finally was elected to the United States Senate. His present term expires in 1929.

For fourteen years the couple lived happily. Then came the black pearls of the Romanoffs.

The pearls, forty-two in number, and perfectly matched, were purchased by the Senator's wife from Prince Felix Youssoupoff, members of the Romanoff family and slayer of Rasputin, the mad monk. The price paid for the pearls was said to have been more than $400,000.

CURSED BY WITCH PRINCESS.

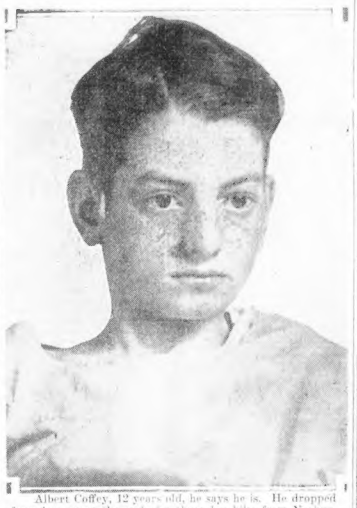
It was said that a witch princess, mother of a Tartar khan, murdered with death and with the bombing of her home by a young fanatic. The police arrested the man, but Mrs. Townsend, a nervous wreck, refused to prosecute.

Then, within a few weeks, came word from Paris that the fourteen-year-old romance of Senator Gerry and his wife was at an end—that Mrs. Gerry had sued for a divorce on the grounds of desertion.

FONTAINE'S WHITNEY SUIT GOES TO GOTHAM COURT

White Plains, N. Y., June 29 (A.P.).—Supreme Court Justice Tompkins today granted a change of venue of the second branch of promise suit of Evans Burrows Fontaine, dancer, against Cornelius Vanderbilt Whitney, from Westchester County to New York. The action was filed Saturday. The first suit was thrown out of court last year.

HALF FAMISHED BOY CAN'T NAME FATHER



Albert Coffey, 12 years old, he says he is. He dropped from hunger at the end of a three-day hike from Nashua, N. H., walking three days on one meal, and is now at City Hospital. Father and stepmother are away in Maine, he says, and can't even remember dad's name.

ATTACK ON WIFE OF ARMY MAN IS MYSTERY

Plymouth, June 29.—State police, after investigation, are still baffled by the mystery surrounding the attack on the wife of Major Robert Barrett, U. S. A., in the woods in Duxbury.

The officer's wife is in a serious condition at the Jordan Hospital with ten cuts in her hand.

All the State police have learned from their investigation is that Major Barrett, who is to become a member of the First Corps Area staff on July 1, drove to the office of Dr. William Curtin, in Plymouth, with his injured wife in the car. The officer was unable to tell anything save that his wife was attacked by two men when she left the car to gather some wild flowers in the woods.

The officers said that he drove down the road a short distance and was sitting in the car when he heard his wife scream. He ran to her and found her bleeding and unconscious on the ground, while two men were fleeing.

After Dr. Curtin had Mrs. Barrett removed to the hospital, the Major accompanied the State police to Duxbury, but he was unable to point out the spot where the attack occurred. The officers told the authorities he had been stationed at Fort Leavenworth until recently, when he was ordered to Boston, to report on July 1.

At the hospital, when Mrs. Barrett was questioned after regaining consciousness, she declared she did not know who struck her, but had just stepped into the woods when she was struck. She screamed for help and then was struck a number of times before she lost consciousness.

EDISON OF BROCKTON ASKS NEW STOCK ISSUE

Watertown, N. Y., June 29 (A.P.).—One man was killed instantly and two others were fatally injured in a mysterious dynamite explosion in the mines of the New Jersey Zinc Company at Edwards, St. Lawrence county.

ONE MEAL ON 3-DAY HIKE; BOY IS 'ALL IN'

A weak, bewildered boy, found in some collapse in Dorchester, is a center of interest and speculation today in Ward 7, City Hospital.

He says he is Albert Coffey, 14 years old, and that, when he fell from weakness on the Granite street bridge he had just concluded a hike from Nashua, N. H.

On the way, he told the hospital authorities, he had only one meal. It took him three days to make the journey. He is being treated for one of the worst cases of malnutrition the doctors have seen.

The boy said that his father and stepmother were waiting in Maine and he was alone. But then he couldn't remember his father's name. Pedestrians had noticed the lad sitting on the bridge and muttering, when suddenly he toppled over. Police was taken first to the Fields Corner police station and then to the hospital.

SHEPHERD TO SUE OLSON AND OTHERS FOR SLANDER

Chicago, June 29 (A.P.).—The Chicago Tribune says that William D. Shepherd, recently acquitted of the murder of his foster-son, William N. McClintock, is preparing to file damage suits against several persons connected with the case. Attorneys W. S. Stewart and W. W. O'Brien, who defended Shepherd, are preparing the suits, which, it was said, will charge slander, vicious prosecution and false imprisonment.

The Tribune says it is understood the defendants will be Chief Justice Harry Olson of the municipal court, who started the investigation into McClintock's death, and Attorneys Alexander Reichmann and John H. S. Lee. Lee is attorney for Miss Isabelle Pope, who was McClintock's fiancee.

LIVELY AS FLAPPERS AT ANNUAL REUNION

As happy and full of laughter as school girls in their teens, eighty-year-old twin sisters are today celebrating their birthdays in an annual reunion that has been held every June 29 for the past half-century.

These remarkable twins are Mrs. Alice Morse, who lives with her daughter at No. 1 Kearsarge terrace, Roxbury, and Mrs. Alma McDowell, who lives with her husband, John McDowell at the Home for the Aged, Methuen.

Four score years have not dimmed the eyes or dulled the minds of these sisters, and in the midst of their merrymaking at the Roxbury home today they found enough time to offer some pungent comment on the girls of today as compared with the Civil War days.

"It's the mothers, not the daughters who are to blame for our jazz age," both sisters declared.

Mrs. Alice Morse, is a widow, whose interest today centers in a new diamond ring.

Her sister's prize possession is her second husband, who accompanied her to the birthday celebration and feast.

The twins were asked what they thought of the modern woman and the modern home. Here are some of their observations:

"Money is the root of all the evils in the world today. Because women have become the money handlers of the family they have become wild rats of finance."

"Children are brought up in the moving pictures while wives seek members trying to make actors boys and girls of them."

"And husbands are living out of paper bags and tin cans."

"In our days the men were manly and nice, upright and honorable. The men today aren't so good and the women are to blame."

PRESIDENT COMFORTS WIFE AS SHE BREAKS DOWN

PRAY AT GRAVE OF SON

noon of the morning in the yard joking with John, who with overalls on, performed the chores. Then he raked the yard, after which he began the work of marking shingles needed to Mrs. Coolidge.

The President looked on with considerable enjoyment, occasionally offering facetious suggestions.

Dr. Arthur L. Chute, who with Major Quinn hurried over the roads from Boston yesterday to perform the operation draining the bladder of Colonel Coolidge, left for home at 10:25 today.

At that time the patient's condition was not as satisfactory it was announced he would be propped up on pillows in the afternoon.

Major Quinn advised the President it would be all right for him to attend the celebration in Cambridge Friday, unless complications set in.

He said the physicians must watch for two possibilities, namely an undue weakening of the patient's heart, and the forming of a blood clot in the wound which might pass through the blood channels to the heart.

COMFORTABLE IN NIGHT.

After their first round of yesterday, the sun now reddened over Plymouth Notch today, bringing with it no signs of surcease to the Little Coolidge misfortune.

The double and sometimes of the night were swept away in the shining sunlight, when President Coolidge was informed by the physicians that his father's condition was much improved.

Following an emergency operation for the drainage of the bladder, Colonel John Coolidge passed a comfortable night, sleeping through most of it.

After a visit to their patient, Dr. James E. Chapel, White House physician, and Dr. A. L. Chute, Boston specialist, announced shortly before 8 o'clock, standard time, that the conference with Dr. A. M. Cram of Bridgewater, the patient's personal physician, Dr. C. P. Ball and Dr. C. H. Swift of the Rutland hospital staff who are also in attendance.

Doctors Chapel and Chute left the sickroom after midnight last night and slept at a nearby farmhouse, the patient being intrusted to a nurse's care.

PRESIDENT DONS SWEATER.

They reached the house again at 7 o'clock this morning, going in at once to examine the Colonel, and then to reassure the President, who was early astir.

At 7:20 President Coolidge, unconventionally dressed in white shirt without a collar, a sweater and trousers, appeared on the porch to enjoy the sharp mountain air and the sunshine.

The tension of yesterday and last night, when he made a fast trip from Swampscott by auto and spread fears throughout the nation, was apparently gone, and he appeared jovial.

After a short time President Coolidge strolled around inspecting the handiwork of his son John, who has been engaged in shingling all the farm buildings.

John in the meantime had been out and about for nearly an hour, also in overalls, busily at work on the chores, which fell to his lot during his illness Colonel Coolidge has attended to himself.

WHOLE TOWN PATROLLED.

The Coolidge farmhouse presented a picture of rural peace, with no signs of the excitement that marked yesterday's crisis. A cordon of Secret Service men surrounded the house and environs, and the roads were patrolled by State motor vehicle inspectors and deputy sheriffs. They were supplemented by the arrival of three more deputies today in the persons of Charles Hannah, W. F. Mahoney and C. W. Stearns.

The guards had little to do, only one automobile attempting to pass the deadline. This was a flivver from Maine, bound from Woodstock to Ludlow, which had stopped at Plymouth, its occupants hopeful of obtaining a glimpse of the Coolidge homestead. They were unsuccessful.

There was more activity at the general store, where neighbors were running in and out anxious to obtain the latest reports concerning the condition of the sick man. The half hundred reporters and photographers who followed the President from the Summer White House, were also on hand, having spent the night in nearby towns.

Last night the colonel's condition was so improved that the physicians decided that everyone in the household could go to bed except the nurse on duty. Before midnight President Coolidge stepped at his father's bedside for a moment. The colonel was asleep and the President did not waken him. Then the President and his wife retired to their simple bedchamber on the second floor and a short time later the doctors retired.

President Coolidge has made announcement of his plans save that he would remain at his father's home until his parent was out of all danger.

The President is scheduled to deliver an address at Cambridge on Friday, at the 150th anniversary of Washington's taking command of the Continental army. The address, an important one, had been prepared for a number of weeks.

As yet, the President has not cancelled the Cambridge engagement. If it is possible for him to do so, he will take part in the celebration, but if there is the slightest doubt as to the condition of his father he will remain at the bedside of his parent.

The two score correspondents who accompanied President Coolidge to Swampscott for his Summer vacation are all quartered in the Notch. The neighbors of the Coolidges have opened up their homes, and every house within a radius of a mile is now "keeping boarders."

Racing by automobile from the Summer White House at Swampscott, by special train which shattered the normal running time from Boston through the Connecticut valley to Ludlow, and again by motor, risking the washed-out roads through the Vermont mountains and an improvised bridge which replaced the structure over the Black River, carried away by the terrific storm, President and Mrs. Coolidge arrived here in a driving rain, four hours after his father's operation.

ABSCESS LANCED.

Colonel Coolidge underwent the surgeon's knife at 1:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon. The surgeon opened an abscess in the prostate gland and drained the bladder. Local anesthetics only were applied because of the Colonel's advanced age and a weakened heart. The operation was deemed necessary because of the anguishing pain he suffered from the prostatic condition.

He was conscious throughout. He laughed and joked with the five physicians at the bedside.

The operation was performed in the same room in which nearly two years ago the father administered the oath of President to his son by the feeble rays of a kerosene lamp. The table upon which had rested the Bible on which the President subscribed to the oath was the receptacle of the surgeon's instruments.

The operation was begun at 1:30 and was completed at 2:05. Colonel Coolidge was then tenderly lifted from the emergency operating room to his own four-poster. The physicians said the operation was successful. They repeated their confidence in a formal statement, signed by all five.

The bulletin issued by the doctors fifteen minutes after the President's arrival was as follows:

"An operation has been performed upon the President's father and his condition is now very satisfactory."

A nurse and an interne from a nearby hospital are also in attendance."

GREETS FATHER.

President and Mrs. Coolidge alighted from their car and went directly to the Colonel's bedside.

"Hello, father," said the President.

"Hello, son," said the father.

The President bent over and kissed him upon the cheek.

Mrs. Coolidge also embraced him.

President and Mrs. Coolidge sat with him for twenty minutes. The President looked upon the father intently. The Colonel smiled back a smile of confidence. The physicians assured the President that the father's condition was extremely favorable and that there was not the slightest imminence of danger.

President and Mrs. Coolidge reentered the White House car, which had brought Drs. Chapal and Chute from Boston, and motored between rain gusts, in the twilight, to the foot of the hill, and there entered the family cemetery. They paused at the grave of their son, Calvin, Jr. They prayed, alone.

They returned to the home before a storm broke over the mountains. President Coolidge went again to the father's side. Mrs. Coolidge remained upon the porch, we-going. The President joined her soon upon the porch, placed his arm affectionately about her, and the two walked together around the verandas, alone with their grief.

Attorney-General Sargent, who first informed the President of his father's illness, and young John Coolidge greeted the President and Mrs. Coolidge upon the train's arrival at the Ludlow station.

Health Failing

Colonel John Coolidge, father of the President, is said to have kidney affliction and may come to Boston to put in the hands of specialists.

FATHER OF COOLIDGE IS AILING

Col. Coolidge May Be Brought to Boston for Observation by Specialists

Col. John Coolidge, father of the President, is coming to Plymouth shortly for medical observation of an ailment believed to be kidney trouble, the Boston Evening American learned today.

It is understood the colonel will come from his home at Plymouth, Vt., to the Massachusetts General Hospital, where he will be examined by specialists. It is possible that an operation may follow.

Questioned by a representative of the Boston Evening American regarding the reports that Colonel John Coolidge, father of President Coolidge, was ill and would probably come to Boston for examination by specialists, this news was published more than a week before any other Boston newspaper had any inkling of Colonel Coolidge's sickness. This is another example of the wideawake policy of the Boston Evening American.

AMERICAN TOLD OF COOLIDGE ILLNESS FIRST

The serious illness of Colonel John Coolidge, father of President Coolidge, whose life hangs in the balance after a hasty operation in the Coolidge homestead in Plymouth, Vt., recalls a striking newspaper beat scored by the Boston Evening American in first announcing to the world the illness of Colonel Coolidge.

On April 22, the Boston Evening American in its night and subsequent editions, carried the story that Colonel Coolidge's health had failed and that within a few days he would come to Boston for an examination by Hub specialists. The article further told that the aged Vermonter might be forced to undergo an operation.

The story of Colonel Coolidge's illness and proposed visit to a Boston hospital for observation was obtained by the Boston Evening American from confidential sources. No other newspaper in Boston or elsewhere carried a line of news on the story until days afterward.

So carefully had the proposed visit of Colonel Coolidge to the Hub been guarded that even the Colonel refused to comment on the matter when the story in the Boston Evening American was called to his attention.

The arrangements for the visit to Boston had been made by President Coolidge, who was alarmed over reports that reached him from Dr. Albert M. Cram, personal physician to his father. The White House made direct arrangements with the Boston specialists for the examination of the senior Coolidge.

It was not until eight days after the exclusive story of Colonel Coolidge's illness appeared in the Boston Evening American that the other Boston newspapers awoke to the fact that they had been scooped on a story of major importance, and one that was of interest to newspaper readers throughout the entire United States. It was on April 30, the day that Colonel Coolidge came to Boston from his Plymouth home that readers of other Boston newspapers learned what Boston Evening American readers had known for more than a week.

On May 1, Colonel Coolidge was examined at the Massachusetts General Hospital by Dr. Paul D. Wrightington and later was examined by Dr. Arthur L. Chute at the physician's office.

Colonel Coolidge returned to his home in Plymouth immediately after the examinations.

The clean beat of eight days on the story of the illness of Colonel Coolidge is but a single instance of the journalistic enterprise that for many years has enabled the Boston Evening American to give its readers the news—FIRST.

Messages of Sympathy Flood Summer Capital

Swampscott, June 29.—Telegrams and letters are pouring into White Court here and the presidential executive offices in Lynn expressing sympathy and the hope that Col. Coolidge, father the President, will have an early recovery.

They are directed to President Coolidge whose absence from White Court will depend entirely on the condition of his venerable father. Encouraging reports were received today from the patient's home in Plymouth, Vt.

COL. COOLIDGE PRAYED FOR BY SON'S PASTOR

New York, June 29 (A.P.) — A prayer for the recovery of Colonel John Coolidge, father of the President, who is ill at his home in Plymouth, Vt., was offered by the Rev. Dr. Jason Noble Pierce, who was a visiting preacher at the First Presbyterian Church here. Dr. Pierce is pastor of the First Congregational Church of Washington, where President Coolidge worships.

Speaking from the pulpit formerly occupied by the Rev. Dr. Harry Emerson Fosdick, Dr. Pierce made his sermon a eulogy of General Charles G. Dawes, whom he called "a great Presbyterian." He praised the Vice-President's campaign for the cloture rule in the United States Senate. "The world needs such strong characters," he said, "who attest their religious faith by virile deeds."

Dr. Pierce also praised the work of the President in cutting down administration expenses.

Mayor Quinn Expects President at Cambridge

Mayor Quinn of Cambridge announced today he had received no word to the effect that the President would be unable to participate in the celebration on Friday. He believes the President will attend, as the message he has to deliver is of sufficient importance, according to the Mayor, to bring him.

Mayor Quinn said the authorities are going ahead with their plans to receive President Coolidge on Friday, as he believes he would have received word by this time if the nation's head would be unable to attend.

'WASTERS CAN'T PASS, SAYS COOLIDGE

Economy Watchword of Commander, Assistant Secretary Davis Announces

Washington, June 29 (A.P.).—Economy is the watchword of the commander-in-chief of the army, "and those who cannot remember it shall not pass," Acting Secretary of War Davis informed the graduating class at the Army War College in a prepared address today, pointing out that they were now ready for general staff duty in the department.

"At the War College you study the economy of forces," Mr. Davis said. "At the War Department we practice the force of economy. Order No. 1, headquarters, commander-in-chief, commands 'constructive economy' and as good soldiers and good citizens we have always cheerfully and loyally obeyed. In war we entrench; in peace, we retrench. The pen is mightier than the sword; the budgetary blue pencil is mightier than the whole army. So upon your graduation I urge upon you two fundamental principles—economy and efficiency."

A military tactical problem was a study to make the most effective use of available forces, Mr. Davis declared, and that also was the army's problem under the economy slogan.

"It is not what we need, but what he have, that counts," he continued. "We must utilize every single item of value. There must be no waste.

"The War Department has faithfully tried to do its part. Since the war we have been living on our fat the surplus on hand at the time of the armistice. Unfortunately, this cannot last forever. The fat has disappeared and we are down to bare bones.

"I believe that today we are more nearly giving the nation a dollar of value for every dollar spent than ever before in our history."

HONORS FOR DAWES AND 13 OTHERS IN WAR WORK

Washington, June 29 (A.P.).—Certificates appreciative of their "notable service in connection with procurement during the World War," or their interest in post-war industrial preparedness plans, will be conferred tomorrow by Acting Secretary of War Davis on Vice-President Dawes and thirteen others at the graduation of the third class of the Army Industrial College. The civilians are: Bernard M. Baruch, Robert M. Somers Brookings, John J. Carty, Benedict Crowell, Samuel M. Felton, Judge Elbert H. Gary, Walter S. Gifford, William Green, Alexander Legge, Dr. Franklin H. Martin, Colonel Frank A. H. Scott, Guy E. Tripp and Daniel Willard.

FRENCH TROOPS QUIT RHINE INDUSTRIAL AREA

Berlin, June 29.—Evacuation of the Ruhr has begun. The army of French poilus which invaded the "industrial heart" of Germany on January 10, 1923, to make Germany pay, is again turning eyes toward Paris.

The first of the French troops already have left their quarters on the northern edge of the occupied area—homeward bound.

Under the program worked out by Marshal Petain, the withdrawal is to be carried out in four stages, so that the last French soldier will have left German soil before August 16, the final date set for evacuation.

PRISONER ASKS FOR A DRINK; VANISHES

Yosauf Hasson of Norwood, a prisoner held under a serious charge, escaped from the district courthouse in Dedham today by the simple ruse of asking leave to get a drink of water.

Officers on motor cars are searching the woods between Dedham and Hyde Park for him.

SMOOT SEES TAX CUT OF OVER $350,000,000

Washington, June 29 (Universal).—A tax cut between $350,000,000 and $400,000,000 by the next Congress appears certain with the Treasury's announcement of an estimated surplus of $245,000,000 when the fiscal year closes on Tuesday, Chairman Smoot of the Senate finance committee said today.

"We can certainly reduce taxes by $350,000,000 and by the time we get down to actual work, I believe we shall find it possible to pare off the larger amount," the Senator said.

MAN SHOT TO DEATH IN CROWDED STREET

New York, June 29 (A.P.).—In an East Side street crowded with men and women on their way to work, Joseph Russo, 45, a cabinet maker, was shot and killed early today by two unidentified men who escaped.

The pair emerged from a doorway near Russo's home, fired six shots at him, two of which took effect, threw wheir revolvers away and fled over a fence.

BEBE DANIELS IN WAR PLAY AT FENWAY

Whether or no this is the time for war plays, the pictured version of "The Crowded Hour" which opened at the Fenway Saturday, provides the star, Bebe Daniels, with a role well suited to her talents and the result is nothing if not entertaining.

In the transfer from stage to screen, the scenes has, of course, assumed its natural prerogative in adding liberally to the action, especially with the aid of the obviously borrowed "shots" from the newsreels.

Bebe Daniels as Peggy the "hello girl," gets bored to tears with the switchboard and feeling the "call" to the footlights breaks in to vaudeville and with the help of Billy Laidlaw, successful "man-about-town," makes a hit as a comedienne and a bigger hit with Billy. Of course Bill has a wife and here's your triangle.

The World War happens along in time for Billy to be able to join up, go to France and "get away from it all," but, as the base of the triangle, he finds it is not so easy in disposing of the other two sides. The "two sides" go to France also, wife as a nurse, Peggy as a Y. M. C. A. worker.

In the tragedies of the war that all hands have their share in, things manage to come out just right and it is gratifying to see Peggy sending friend Bill back to his wife.

As the companion piece to "The Crowded Hour," Richard Talmadge in "The Fight Demon" is shown. Richard, as a young draughtsman for a safety vault concern, gets lured to South America by a group of high-geared villians who practice the gentle art of safe blowing. They try to force the stalwart Richard to help them open the local vault, but they forget he is a fighting demon and our hero knocks 'em cold.

Seals Broken and Part of Consignments Are Stolen in West Springfield

Springfield, June 29.—Having involuntarily gone into the liquor business, the West Springfield yards of the Boston & Albany Railroad enlarged its liquor house stock today by $49,500 worth.

Added to the $150,000 worth of liquor found in a freight car Saturday night, today's discovery swelled the road's accumulation of wet goods to a total value of $149,000.

There would have been more to go in storage, but forty-six cases had been stolen from the freight car seized Saturday night and 2,000 gallons had been filched from today's car.

Broken seals of the freights gave their contents away in both instances. Railroad Officer Edward J. Patro of the Boston & Albany discovered a broken seal on a car Saturday night, and investigating discovered that the car contained liquor.

Early today as a freight car, brought from the vicinity of New Bedford over the New Haven lines and billed as containing 94 pieces of cotton goods, was being shifted for the Albany run, Officer Patro discovered another broken seal.

Opening the door, he detected the odor of liquor, and was amazed to find that the car, consigned to a point in Illinois, contained 2,000 gallons of Scotch whiskey with a value of $80,000.

Federal officers were notified and the liquor was confiscated.

TWO PAY $100 FINE ON LOTTERY TICKET CHARGE

Fitchburg, June 29. — Thomas Dreyfous of Columbus avenue, Boston, and Edgar J. Fournier of Ashley boulevard, New Bedford, were arraigned in District Court today, charged with possessing lottery tickets and having lottery tickets in their possession with intent to sell.

Retracting pleas of not guilty they pleaded guilty and were fined $100 each.

Fournier also paid a fine of $10 for operating an automobile with improper brakes.

They were arrested after the police had tried unsuccessfully for weeks to capture them. The tickets were in the original Louisiana lottery," and a capital prize of $10,000 was promised.

RAILWAYS' TAX BILL BREAKS ALL RECORDS

Washington, June 29 (A.P.).—Class one railroads of the country paid $340,342,000 in Federal and State taxes during 1924, The Bureau of Railway Economics said the total exceeded that of every previous year.

The figure was an increase of $8,426,608, or 2.5 per cent, over the taxes paid in 1923, and compared with 1913 it was an increase of 187 per cent.

For each $100 of operating revenue realized by the railroads during last year, $5.59 was paid as taxes.

Eighty per cent. went to State governments, the remaining $73,367,510 went to the Federal government.

TURK REBEL LEADER SENTENCED TO DEATH

London, June 29.—Sheik Said, leader of the latest revolt of the forces of old Turkey against the new Turkey represented by the Angora government, and twenty-nine of his principal lieutenants have been sentenced to death while twenty-five others, charged with complicity in the Kurdish uprising, have been acquitted, according to a Central News dispatch from Diarbekir today.

Sheik Said's war cry was for the separation of Kurdistan from Turkey, the revival of the Caliphate or hereditary headship of the Mohammedan Turks and the expulsion of the present rulers of Angora as atheists.

MORE HALIFAX MINE PROPERTY DESTROYED

Halifax, N. S. (I.N.S.).—Destruction of the British Empire Steel Corporation's mining property here continued today. The United Mine Workers gave no signs of breaking their strike.

Several small buildings and a railway trestle were destroyed.

At Spring Hill miners agreed to permit the company to operate pumps to save the mines from floods.

DR. CHARLES H. MAYO MEETS KING GEORGE

London, June 29 (A.P.).—King George today received at Buckingham Palace Dr. Charles H. Mayo of Rochester, Minn., the American surgeon. He was introduced to the King by Lord Dawson, one of the physicians to His Majesty.

Dr. Mayo and the King discussed the visit to England of American and Canadian doctors, who attended the recent meeting in London of the Interstate Postgraduate Assembly.

BROCKTON BUS LINE IS AN 'OUTLAW'

Supreme Court Rules Owner Must Obtain Licenses In Every Town

The full bench of the Supreme Court today affirmed a decree of the Superior Court enjoining Fred A. Delcher from operating motor busses or coaches between Boston and Brockton, in competition with the New Haven Railroad Company, without first obtaining a license from each city and town through which the bus line is operated.

The opinion of the court, written by Chief Justice Rugg, says the defendant, Delcher, by operating his motor vehicles without first having obtained the licenses required by the General Laws renders the vehicles outlaws and constitutes a nuisance.

BRITISH AND FRENCH ALONE IN SHAMEEN

Hongkong, June 29 (A.P.).—The British and French consul's generals have requested all foreigners other than British and French subjects to leave Shameen, the foreign concession at Canton, as a measure of precaution.

Telegrams from Hoihow, port of Kiungchow, say anti-foreign demonstrations have become more violent and the situation is acute.

The British consul at Foochow has requested protection from the Chinese military governor because of reports of an attack upon the cable station at that port.

STUDENTS IN KIDNAP PLOT HALED TO COURT

San Francisco, June 29 (A.P.).—Russell Crawford and Elias Baker, university athletes, whose plan to extort $50,000 from Colonel D. C. Jackling, millionaire mining man, as an experiment in test the machinery of the law," met with failure here last Friday, approached police court today on two felony charges, attempted extortion and sending a threatening letter with intent to extort.

A letter sent to Colonel Jackling threatened to kidnap and murder his son if the original $50,000 was not forthcoming. Colonel Jackling then notified the police.

Ex-Premier Michelsen Dead

Oslo, Norway, June 29 (A.P.).—Former Premier Christian Michelsen is dead. He headed the cabinet in 1905, when the union between Norway and Sweden was dissolved.

...ITHA LEE TO ...ONDUCT NEW CONTEST

WNAC - American Women's Club to Get Prizes for Best Salad Recipes

This is certainly salad weather and because I know many of you are serving delicious salads every day I am going to award the prizes in the July Martha Lee Contest for the best salad recipes sent in by members of the WNAC Boston Evening American Women's Club.

The judging committee has only today read over the last one of the recipes entered in the big contest and the prize winners will be announced some day this week. It certainly was a wonderful contest and I did not know there were so many splendid cooks in our numbers. I think it has really been the hardest contest of all to judge, with the possible exception of the cake contest.

When you read about the prizes that are being offered this month I am very sure that every single one of our 15,000 members will want to try for them, for salads are easy things to make and the prizes are very wonderful indeed.

As usual there are practically no conditions in the contest, first except that your full name and address go on every recipe that you send in and your membership number in the WNAC American Women's Club. And be sure to include one or more of the food products advertised in the Boston American in your recipes. I am not going to put them this month because I am sure you read the paper faithfully enough to be familiar with what is advertised. Of course you won't forget to write on just one side of the paper.

RADIO FIRST PRIZE.

The first prize is something that I find it hard to describe properly for it's one of the very finest radios that I believe has ever been made. It is the famous Freshman Masterpiece, valued at $175.00, and has been donated by the Mohawk Electric Company of Chicago. This machine is one of the smallest yet developed in the method of operation, all that has to be done with it is to turn the knob when I tell you that Pamela calls a society or a jazz night one week, you will realize how fine it is.

The finest workmanship proves that radio sets today are being built much more carefully than in previous years and the tone quality of the Mohawk is perfected through the use of the well-known Scromberg Carlson Amplifying Transformer. Tell your son or husband about this set and see how anxious they will be for you to try hard to win it. Truly it is a wonder set and fortunate indeed will be the winner.

SECOND PRIZE.

The second prize is a Vital Rand non-electric vacuum cleaner valued at $39.50 with no motor and no cords to bother. Choice better than electricity. As easy to operate as it is to walk and no big electric light bills. Something every housekeeper will appreciate. This is donated by Vital Rand Company of Boston.

THIRD PRIZE.

The third prize is one of the new x-s cup size electric Silex coffee pots. The stainless coffee pot that makes perfect coffee in two minutes flow from medium rare. Value $5.00. Donated by the Silex Company of Mass.

FOURTH PRIZE.

The fourth prize is a Silken-Spicer chemicalized rubberized rain coat, choice of colors and sizes, silky finish. Corduroy faced collar. Value $6.50.

FIFTH PRIZE.

Fifth prize is a Diver Fruit and Vegetable Press. Also serves as a sieve, ricer and colander. Easy to operate. Will last a lifetime. Something you'll use three or four times a day. Donated by the Diver Mfg. Company of Pittsburgh, Pa. Value $6.50.

SIXTH PRIZE.

Sixth prize is an Everybody's Ice Cream Freezer, manufactured by the Toytown Freezer Company of Winchendon, donated by Mr. Geo. Viner, secretary of the Mass. Ice Dealers' Association. It makes delicious ice cream with practically no labor. A genuine self-freezer. Makes a nine ice chest for picnics and motor trips, too. Value $5.00.

OTHER PRIZES.

Seventh, eighth, ninth and tenth prizes are one gallon cans of Mazola Cooking Oil, donated by the Corn Products Refining Company of New York. The famous cooking oil that's as good for pies, cakes, deep fat fry ing and practically every cooking purpose. Value $2.50 a gallon.

Twelfth, thirteenth, fourteenth, fifteenth, sixteenth, seventeenth, eighteenth, nineteenth, twentieth, and twenty-first prizes — ten boxes of the stationery with name and address on both paper and envelopes. One hundred sheets of paper and fifty envelopes in each box. Donated by Thorp & Martin Company of Boston.

Eleventh prize is one case of ZaRex Pure Fruit Syrups (six one-pint jugs), Lemon and Lime, Strawberry, Raspberry, Orange, Lemon and ZaRex Punch. A wholesale beverage popular with everybody. Donated by the ZaRex Food Products, Inc., of Boston, Mass. Value $2.10.

Members of the WNAC Boston Evening American Women's Club are urged to take part in the July Martha Lee Contest, as the prizes indicate it will be well worth while. The contest is to develop something new in salad recipes. Valuable and useful prizes will be awarded for the best recipes.

HOME is the place for children. And how much better for them when it is your own home. Some big bargains in Homes this week in the Classified Ads.

PLANS TO SETTLE 75,000 PALESTINE IMMIGRANTS

Washington, June 29. (A.P.)—Emanuel Neumann of New York, honorary secretary of the Palestine Foundation Fund, addressing the convention of the Zionist Organization of America, today proposed a $19,000,000 budget for the two years beginning next October, for Zionist activities in upbuilding the Jewish homeland in Palestine.

The fund is expected to enable 25,000 new immigrants to settle in Palestine.

Opposition to the budget is expected to be offered at the Vienna Congress by the Zionist left wing, on the ground that it favors middle class settlers in Palestine.

KEEP COOL WITH C & K GINGER ALE

A Delightful Summer-Time Beverage

I wonder how many housewives realize that Ginger Ale is recognized as one of the most cooling, refreshing beverages there is? Most of us are too busy to think of stopping long enough in our duties to sip a glass of Ginger Ale. Yet just a little while you're out and tired will prove a wonderful restorative. That oppressive, tired feeling which comes as the thermometer begins to climb, or the sun seems wrapped in a wet, steaming blanket, disappears like magic. I know because I've often proved it.

Not long ago I came home after an unusually tiring day. A neighbor dropped in to run in and accidently mentioned that I was pretty badly frayed mentally and physically. I left without a word, to return with a few minutes with me in a cool bath of C & K Ginger Ale. She found some glasses in the house and ice, time than it takes to tell she handed me a cool, sparkling drink. My spirits revived with each sip and I want to tell you it went to just the right spot.

Of course any cold drink just at that time would have been welcomed, but there was something about this C & K Ginger Ale that proved particularly stimulating and refreshing. I earnestly advise every housekeeper to have a few bottles on the ice for regular use. If you will try it once, you will ever after be a C & K fan. I know.

Friends of mine believe C & K to be a great weight reducer. Certain it contains no fat building substances—just clear, pure, spicy nectar with a mild ginger flavor and delicious fruit juices that are good for both. It is a perfect beverage to serve for any occasion—on the verandah at twilight with the basket lunch in the country, or at the sandwich and tea served wherever ice is used. Always be sure to be cool. And one of the best things about it is that the children may have all they want of it.

There's just one more thought about C & K I want to leave with you. To many, a Ginger Ale is not pleasing. After a few sips the palate is so peppered with bitters that an otherwise refreshing drink becomes like a dose of medicine. This is positively not the case with C & K which is mild to the last drop. Coleman & Keating have been making it a long time now and in that time have found the secret of obtaining just the right flavor for a beverage, not too strong and yet with sufficient body not to be insipid.

It is true that C & K is a wonderful aid to digestion, but to me its chief delight is its wholesome, refreshing flavor. So once again I urge the housekeepers to obtain a sample. Most grocers and Corner Stores sell C & K because of the demand for this old New England product. But if for any reason you have difficulty in getting a sample when you want it, please write me a line and I will see you are properly taken care of.

Recipes for Parts of Today's Menu

PEPPERS STUFFED WITH CRAB MEAT

6 Sweet Green Peppers, 20c
1 small can Namco Crab Meat, 35c
1 cup stale bread crumbs, 1c
1 cup Tomato Pulp, 5c
1 tsp. salt
⅛ tsp. pepper
1 tsp. onion juice, 1c

Mix the crab meat, bread crumbs and tomato pulp. Season with salt, pepper and onion juice. Cut a slice from the stem end of the peppers. Remove seeds and parboil them 3 minutes. Cool, place in buttered muffin tins, fill with Namco Crab Meat mixture, cover with buttered crumbs and bake 20 minutes. Serve with Brown gravy or Tomato Sauce.

Total cost of recipe, 62c. Serves 4. Cost per person, 15½c.

SAT-TEN CHOCOLATE RICE PUDDING

4 tbsps. rice, 2c
1 tsp. salt
1 tsp. vanilla, 1c
¼ cup seeded raisins, 5c
2 egg whites, 5c
3 tbsps. Sat-Ten Chocolate Sauce, 20c
2 cups milk, 6c
2 tbsps. butter, 3c
½ cup beaten cream, 8c

Soak the rice in milk for one-half hour and add salt and cook in a double boiler until tender. Mix butter, chocolate sauce, raisins and vanilla; add cooked rice, beaten whites and cream. Fill buttered baking dish and cover with a meringue. Brown in a moderate oven. May be served either hot or cold.

Total cost of recipe, 50c. Serves 4. Cost per person, 12½c.

CRAB MEAT AND ITS MANY USES

New Recipes to Be Published

Those of our 18,465 Club members who have been following the daily radio chats since our Club was organized a little over a year ago, have I am sure, become better acquainted with canned crab meat than they ever were before, through several radio chats on this subject and a number of crab meat recipes.

I don't think I am wholly like Rip Van Winkle who, they tell me, had an insurmountable aversion to all forms of profitable labor—but I certainly have an insurmountable aversion to painfully picking crab meat from its natural haunts. I am fond of crab meat and so are all of my family, but I very much prefer to purchase it scientifically packed in parchment paper in a sanitary tin. In Namco brand, crab meat tins are even lacquered inside for additional protection. I am especially fond of this brand because of its delicious flavor and the fact that the crab meat comes in luscious big pieces instead of tiny shreds, which recommends it in preference to many other brands.

These Namco crabs are caught in the deep blue waters of the northern Pacific ocean by true fishermen who stand the hardship of the cold in order that they may secure for you the world's finest crabs.

Just as soon as it is caught, the crab meat is carefully selected and packed by the most scientific methods, some right on the vessels and some in the canneries ashore. It is then packed in the parchment lined lacquered tins. There are always two sizes on my pantry shelf—one pound and one-half pound, so that they may be used economically either for a luncheon for two or for Sunday night supper for a group of guests.

Crab meat sandwiches are an agreeable change for the business man or girl who carry their lunch, and I don't know of a woman in the world who doesn't enjoy crab meat salads.

Crab meat makes such delicious patties, timbales, stuffing for tomatoes and peppers, canapes, bisque and chowder, too.

Watch this page for the delicious crab recipes that I have in store for you.

SEASONABLE FOOD SPECIALTIES

Some of Martha Lee's Favorites

According to the calendar June will be with us only two more days but fortunately the June grass butter season will be extended quite a bit longer. And what a treat it is with its deep color and rich flavor given to it by the fresh green grass on which the cattle are now pasturing.

If you are one of the thousands of New England housewives who purchase your groceries from the S. S. Pierce Company, you are familiar with the excellence of their own S. S. P. brand of butter and also their Monogram Vermont butter and their Creamery Tub. What you are using right now under these three brands is June grass butter; this which, I believe, there is none better. And incidentally the price is no higher than many butters of poorer quality. S. S. Pierce Monogram Vermont is 66c and the Creamery Tub is 62c a pound.

I do want my club members to become acquainted with as many as possible of my favorite S. S. Pierce products. They are real food treats, as you can expect to buy no tails about them unless quality.

For instance, how many of you have ever tried the S. S. Pierce Creole Tomato Catsup? This is a delicious sauce made from fresh tomatoes and delicate seasonings and is excellent for fish and meats, particularly during the hot weather when tired appetites need tempting. Try it on broiled mackerel, halibut, fillet of sole and the other fish dishes that are popular during the summer months. A good big bottle of this rich appetizing relish for 37c.

And we are all thinking of cool drinks just now. Grape juice is a delicious addition to ginger ale and it is certainly not extravagant when you can buy a whole quart of the very best quality juice pressed from luscious Concord grapes for 55c a quart. 30c a pint. This is the S. S. Pierce Epicure brand of grape juice and I am happy to recommend it.

Soups can be just as enjoyable in summer as in winter, when served chilled. Try a can of that Tomato Soup—it is only 10c a can—Mix it with the same amount of ice cold milk or thin cream. It is healthful cups with a dab of whipped cream floating on top and a crisp saltine or two and you will have a pleasant surprise for your family and guests.

And for the picnic basket, there is a brand new marmalade for those who love the flavor of ginger. The S. S. Pierce Overland brand of Ginger Marmalade, a great big 16 ounce jar for 60c. Watch the pleased and puzzled expressions of the picknickers after the first taste. It's so new, and delicious.

If it will help I will be glad to write to anyone about the many other unusual and inexpensive specialties put out by the S. S. Pierce Co. The grocers that New England is so proud of.

SUNBURNS AND THEIR REMEDY

Special Oil Will Prevent Them

Is there anything more disagreeable to experience or to look at in this world than a bad sunburn when it begins to mould the various layers of burned and shrivelled skin?

I saw such a lovely girl on the street yesterday, or she would have been lovely if she had not been disfigured by a peppering of blisters between her choker-beads and the edge of her dress. Part of the sunburn had peeled off and burned over again and altogether it was a really terrible affliction. How I wished that she had known what I do about Bamacea Oil, one of the most wonderful preparations for burns and scalds, and also for sun and wind burn, that has ever been prepared.

If she had rubbed on Bamacea Oil the same day that she got the sunburn it would have prevented her from taking a new sunburn. Even if she had neglected the sunburn over night, the Bamacea Oil would have taken the soreness out of the burn and have made it possible for her to have worn her clothing with comfort.

Probably you have had just such an experience and I am sure you don't want to repeat it. So why not insure yourself against sunburn this season with a bottle of Bamacea Oil? Use it after motor trips, bathing, golfing, yachting, anything in fact where old Sol has had a chance to do his worst. You will find many other uses, too, for this trusty little preparation. Indeed, for Bamacea Oil is very effective in all rheumatic troubles, and can be used on cuts, burns and scratches without causing any discomfort. It will take the pain from hot water, steam or hot-fat scalds, and burns that remove the skin become comfortable and grow new skin quickly through the help of Bamacea. Rub it on your sore, tired feet, too, as soon as you can take your shoes off and they will feel like new.

It doesn't seem as if anyone could afford to be without Bamacea Oil, does it, especially when you can get it at all druggists for just one thin little quarter. Larger sizes 50c and $1.00.

$1000 FALLS TO WIDOW; POLICY FIFTY CENTS

Fatal Accident Brings Home Value of Boston American Insurance Plan

Just fifty cents Louis Baker of No. 70 Crafts streets, Newtonville, paid for his Boston Advertiser accident policy a year ago believing of course that he would never use it, but it was such a good thing—!

Today his widow, Mrs. Marie Baker, was in possession of a check for $1,000, handed her by George F. Foley, special representative of the Boston Advertiser, thirteen days after her husband was killed while returning from a business trip to New Hampshire.

"I haven't yet paid the funeral expenses," said Mrs. Baker when she received the check drawn by the Inter-Ocean Casualty Company. "I was waiting for the $1,000 on the Advertiser policy and it is wonderful to get it so soon.

"My husband left me with little more than this policy and another, which has not been paid yet. Besides paying the funeral expenses, this money will buy my little children some clothes which they need.

THOUGHT HE'D BETTER.

"When my husband took out the policy he had no idea that he would die within a year, but he thought it a good opportunity to insure. We were readers of the Advertiser and American, and were pleased to put our names down as regular subscribers."

There are many Louis Bakers living today who may not be alive one year from this date. This is no calamity howling, but harsh fact, supported by figures. The writer may be the next; there is no telling in today's swift age.

Now another opportunity for protection is being offered, this time by the Boston Evening American—an offer that is even more generous than that made a year ago.

FOR A DOLLAR A YEAR.

For One Dollar a year any reader or would-be reader of the Boston Evening American may secure $7,500 worth of protection against accident, under an arrangement made by this newspaper with the North American Accident Insurance Company of Chicago.

Some of the best minds of the city and State and throughout New England have taken advantage of this offer, with praise for the newspaper that makes so much protection available, for so little expense.

YOU may secure it. If you are an Evening American Home Delivery subscriber, merely clip the coupon printed elsewhere in this issue, fill it out and send it with One Dollar to the Insurance Department, Boston Evening American.

If you are not, but wish to become, a Home Delivery subscriber, fill out the coupon, stating that fact, send it in with One Dollar, and then pay your regular delivery boy 12 cents a week.

And Do It Now. Delay brings regret.

To secure the Boston Evening American's $7,500 Travel Accident Insurance Policy cut out and fill in the application below and send it with $1.00 as directed.

$100,000 Given to Deerfield Academy

Deerfield, June 29 (A.P.)—The trustees of Deerfield Academy have received a gift of $100,000, one-half of which was contributed by the president of the board, Charles T. Plunkett of Adams, and the remainder by friends of the school. The money will be used to erect a dormitory, and work on a building to house sixty-six boys will be begun immediately.

CHAPLIN HAPPY WITH ARRIVAL OF SON

Los Angeles, June 29.—Introducing Charles Chaplin, Jr.!

Interviewed at his Beverly Hills home, the Chaplin heir-apparent might have indicated his views as follows:

"I just got here yesterday morning. I believe it was 6:10 o'clock when I let out my first yell. And it won't be my last, believe me.

"I don't weigh so much, only six and three-quarters pounds, right now, but give me time. There were a lot of people around. Mother was there and my grandmother, Mrs. Lillian Spicer. And then there were my great grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Currier, and the doctor, and, of course, daddy.

"Every one is making an awful fuss over me, but it doesn't bother me. I like it. Of course, I holler once in a while, but I don't mean anything by it. I just don't want to be overlooked. They haven't named me yet, but I hope they call me Junior. No use having a famous dad if you can't be junior. I hope you'll excuse me now. I am hungry and have a little intensive yelling to do. So long, and don't forget me. Wait till I get big enough to wear my daddy's pants."

As will be noted, Mr. Chaplin, Jr., is in the best of health, as is his mother, Lita Grey Chaplin. And Charlie! Well, Charlie is as proud as proud can be. His strut today is not the one he views before the camera. It is real. He has a son and heir.

TABLET UNVEILED TO 44 DIRIGIBLE DEAD

London, June 29 (A.P.)—American Ambassador Alanson B. Houghton, Royal Aeronautical Society a tablet to the memory of the British and American sailors killed in the R-38 disaster near Hull, England, August 24, 1921.

The dirigible R-38, British built, became the ZR-2 when purchased by the United States. She exploded over the River Humber, near Hull, while on a trial trip preparatory to flying to the United States. Seventeen officers and men of the United States Navy and twenty-seven officers and men of the British Navy were killed.

WOMAN AND GANGSTER SLAIN BY ASSASSIN

New York, June 29 (A.P.)—A gangster's bullets in what police said was a dope peddlers' war ended the life of an unidentified woman early today in addition to that of Angelo Marino, ex-convict and Beau Brummel, alleged leader of a Harlem drug ring.

Marino had stepped jauntily into his expensive automobile in Harlem. Five shots rang out from the darkness. Marino slumped behind the wheel of his car. The woman fell dead on the sidewalk.

ROGERS DUNNED FOR COUNT'S LAWYER FEE

Millicent Authorized Lawyer to Get Austria's Validation, So Owes $6000

New York, June 29.—The bill for Austrian approval of her runaway marriage to Count Salm van Hoogstraten is the Countess' own bill says Arthur J. Stern, attorney, who is trying to collect $6,000 from the daughter of Colonel Henry H. Rogers on behalf of a Vienna lawyer, Stern was asked.

"What principle of law makes a wife liable for her husband's debts, even in Vienna?"

He replied:

"I am advised by Dr. Kammerer, the Vienna attorney who procured the validation of the Rogers-Hoogstraten marriage in the Austrian courts, that his work was authorized in writing by the Countess herself. Proof of this has not yet reached me. But I am expecting it."

COUNTESS OUT OF SIGHT.

The Countess, the heiress to a forty-million-dollar Standard Oil fortune, who danced much with the Prince of Wales, who was once engaged to Jimmy Thompson and broke it off to be married to the Austrian tennis player, soldier of fortune and moving picture actor, could not be reached. Neither could her father.

Millicent Rogers, as the Countess is still known to many of her friends, left the Sloane Hospital for Women last week. She was reported as not in the Ritz or at her father's house in Southampton.

The illness which took her to the hospital was described as a trifling nature. Mrs. Rogers, her mother, went to the hospital at the same time. She is still there.

WANTED CHURCH WEDDING.

At the time of the marriage the Count admitted the sketchy nature of the alliance, according to the standards of the old Austrian nobility. He explained:

"We will probably go through a religious ceremony in the chapel on my mother's estates."

The pair sailed for Europe. But they never went to Austria. There were a few gay weeks in Paris and Cannes.

It was at Cannes that Colonel Rogers, having paid the Paris bills, caught up with his daughter.

Soon the Colonel and Millicent sailed home. The Count stayed in Paris.

NOT WEALTHY AS YET.

The Countess has only recently resumed her appearances in society after the birth of her son, last September. It is only potentially that the Countess ranks among the highly rich. The bulk of the money of old Henry H. Rogers is still in the hands of the generation of Millicent's father.

But her grandfather left her a handsome legacy individually, and it is understood that she is soon to come into control of this. It is reported to be large enough to keep her—and her husband if need be—in comfort, if not luxury.

Her husband meanwhile lives in a small furnished room in Vienna on an allowance from his mother, whose fortunes were shattered by the war. Dr. Kammerer says Salm cannot even pay steerage passage to New York, much less a lawyer's bill.

PRENDERGAST CAMP TO CARE FOR 100 CHILDREN

The Summer camp of the Prendergast Preventorium opened in Mattapan today. A large number of children were admitted from all the outpatient departments in Boston. This year accomodations have been furnished for 100 children and there are about sixty on the waiting list. The Boston Tuberculosis Association has built a dining and recreation house and a large tract of land has been cleared for a playground. The Boston School Department has provided two playground teachers and with the Park Department has loaned the association equipment for a tennis court, croquet, volley ball, swings and see-saws.

The children will sleep in tents. Dr. John Hawes, 2d, and Miss Bernice W. Billings are in charge of the camp.

MEXICO WARNS R. R. MEN NOT TO STRIKE

Mexico City, June 29 (A.P.)—Seeking to put an end to recurrent strike threats and protests against economies in the Interoceanic National Railway Lines, President Calles has issued a warning to the railway men declaring the government is firmly declined to carry out its economic adjustment.

Drastic measures will be ordered, if necessary, he says, and any attempt at strike will bring immediate dismissal of the strikers. The government also is ready energetically to suppress sabotage.

GIRL RUNS INTO LAKE FULLY GARBED, DIES

Waterville, Me., June 29 (A.P.)—Anna Cianchette, sixteen, of Pittsfield, was drowned in Moose Pond, Hartland, when she ran into the water fully clothed and sank before rescuers could reach her. Dr. Charles Moulton of Hartland and Dr. C. J. Strong of Pittsfield worked for two hours trying to resuscitate her. Last Wednesday she was pulled from the water unconscious, when she jumped off a wharf into the pond, it was stated.

12 TEACHERS GET DIPLOMAS TONIGHT

Graduation Exercises to Be Held at Hebrew College on Crawford Street

Rabbi David M. Shohet, Louis M. Epstein, Samuel J. Abrams and Judge David A. Lourie will help make the first graduation exercises of the Hebrew Teachers' College of Roxbury memorable. Only twelve students, a mere handful, will be awarded diplomas for successful completion of all fundamentals of traditional Judaism, tonight in the Hebrew College Auditorium, No. 14 Crawford street.

Leah Kaplan

Qualified to train growing boys and girls in the ancient lore and history of their people, these three girls and nine boys are full-fledged teachers who can secure positions in Hebrew schools, Jewish religious schools or Talmud Torahs.

They are as follows: Leah Kaplan, Sophie Klayman, Eva Goldman, Joseph Diamond, Leslie Flakeman, Jacob J. Kekst, Jacob Hotman, Aaron S. Shain, Sidney Shofner, Aaron Schwartz, Max Simons and Joseph Wilfand. The diploma of Frank Manuel, who also finished the course of studies, will be withheld owing to the extreme youth of the boy. The certificate of honorable qualification will be given him when he reaches the minimum age qualifying him to teach.

Sophie Klayman

Marked by various addresses in English and in Hebrew, the program is one of greetings, advice and promise. A religious service will precede the regular graduation exercises at half past eight, conducted by Rabbis Louis M. Epstein and David M. Shohet, the former of the Crawford street synagogue, the latter of the Fowler street synagogue of Dorchester.

The institution is a subsidized organization of the Federated Jewish Charities and an associate chapter of the Bureau of Jewish Education of which Dr. Leon Medalia is president. Dr. Medalia will make the opening address of welcome.

Eva Goldman

Rabbi Abrams of Temple Onabel Sholem will deliver the sermon. Greetings will come from Judge Lourie, whose advice and assistance have been of the greatest value to the advancement and progress of the school.

The graduates' participation in the exercises will consist of a valedictory address delivered in English by Joseph Diamond and in Hebrew by Leah Kaplan, Aaron S. Shain, president of the class, will recite "Al Saph Beth Hamidrash." The remaining part of the program is as follows: "Looking Forward," Louis Harwich, superintendent of the Bureau of Jewish Education; quartette, Hebrew College students; greetings from Jacob Newman; cantillation, "The Dry Bones," Frank Manuel; farewell address to the graduates by Dr. Nisson Touroff, dean of the institution.

A HOME PAPER FOR THE PEOPLE WHO THINK

BOSTON, MONDAY, JUNE 29, 1925

SECOND SECTION

PEOPLE CAMP OUT TO DODGE QUAKE

Evolution Trial Disrupts Tennessee Church

Sally is lured to meet mysterious woman who asks the girl to open the red lacquer case. Sally plays for time. Posed by Louise Groody, star of "No, No, Nanette," and Edna Whistler of same company as mystery woman. (Photo by Charles Snyder.)

SALLY MEREDITH, pervy niece of M. FREDERICK LASALLE, war gas inventor, is intrusted with the secret of opening the red lacquer case containing the formula sought by spies of rival governments.

THE MARKED HAND appears at a window as Sally and her uncle confer. Sally, frightened, but brave, fruitlessly searches for the owner of the hand. That night the red lacquer case is stolen and Lasalle mysteriously disappears. The case is so constructed that the formula is destroyed if opened by one not in the secret.

MAJOR BILL ARMITAGE, seven years previously the sweetheart of Sally, appears in search of Lasalle. Unexpected meeting renews acquaintance, but Sally is coy and Bill blunders. At Smuggler's Leap Bill and Sally find Lasalle's fountain pen, mute evidence which adds to the fears of Bill. Sally clings to hope.

DETECTIVE WILLIAMS enters the mystery and takes up the trail of the stolen case. Sally is forlorn and Bill longs to comfort her.

Read on and enjoy this wonderful story of love and mystery.

SALLY was silent after following Bill's earnest appeal to be something more than friends. But she resisted a desire to take Bill immediately to her heart. After a moment Bill went on:

"What's the good of beating about the bush?" he said. "If we had met for the first time a week ago, it would all be different; but, as it is, I want to know where we are. I seem to have a knack of annoying you—we never have been able to steer clear of quarreling—and so"— Bill stuck.

After a long pause he made another effort.

"You see it's this way. Up to now I have had an official connection with your affairs—that is, as far as M. Lasalle's disappearance was concerned. Now that's over. If I go on coming down here, it would be on my own—as a friend; and I don't know whether you want me or not. Once," said Bill rather gruffly, "you told me not to butt in on your affairs—that you liked managing them yourself, in your own way—and—well, it's not the sort of thing one wants to hear a second time."

"Did I say that?" said Sally's smallest voice. "How rude! Why did I say it? Were you trying to manage me?"

"I expect so. And we weren't bothering about being polite to each other just then."

"No!" said Sally. Her eyelashes just flickered up and down again. "No—I remember you called me a vixen, and a hoyden, and a little fury. Our manners are much nicer now," she concluded with an air of virtue.

Bill looked out of the window. If he went on looking at Sally, goodness knew what might happen.

"What's the good of making things up?" he said impatiently. "It's now, not seven years ago, that concerns us. Am I to leave you to manage for yourself, or do you want my help?"

Sally stole a glance at his profile, "nubbly but nice," she reflected.

"What do you want me to say?" she said.

"What you really think," said Bill.

"One hardly ever does—not really. But I will if you like. After all, as I said the other day, you can't think much worse of me than you do, so what does it matter? What I feel at present is that everything is slipping—like being in the middle of a landslide with a perfectly horrible nobody-knows-what's-going-to-happen-next sort of feeling about it. And—and you are something solid to take hold of—"

Bill put out his hand. It met Sally's, and found it very cold and small.

"All right, I'm here. Hold on, my dear," he said.

Sally blinked rapidly three times, and jumped up. "I'm an idiot," she said, stamping her foot and pulling her hand out of Bill's—just in time, for even as she did it, Mrs. Callender came in with the tea.

CHAPTER VII.

After a Sunday of the most blameless description Sally felt at peace with the world and in an angelic state of conscience rather unusual for her. Bill and she had parted friends, "for about the first time ever"—as Sally put it.

Monday morning she came downstairs; had breakfast; waited for the post; read a dull letter from Cousin Elma's solicitor; picked up The Times, and there was the bombshell staring her in the face from the Agony Column. Sally stared back, and felt her heart pound against her side.

Friday's advertisement, the sham advertisement, had elicited a prompt reply. There was no mistaking it.

"P. L. to Sally: Don't worry. Messenger will meet you Chark-Strudwick road eleven-thirty today. Absolute discretion."

Sally jumped up and looked at the clock. It was nearly half past ten. Her eyes went back to the paper. Everything seemed to be shaking a little, but she steadied herself, and read the message again. It was from Fritzi. That meant Fritzi was alive. She had always said that he was alive. Bill didn't

FAT WOMEN COME INTO STYLE

New French Bathing Costumes Force the Thin Girls to Eat

By C. F. BERTELLI.

Boston Evening American's Paris Correspondent, Now Visiting in United States

(Copyright, 1925.)

Plumpness is coming back in the fashion centres and on the beaches abroad.

Candles are booming in Paris and starchy food is at a premium. The straight-up-and-down girl is working overtime to increase her weight and to qualify for Deauville.

This is all because of the latest mermaid bathing costume and the new bathhouse on the well-known beach. The costume is of silver cloth scales with a metallic sheen but the softness of satin. Close like, it fits without a wrinkle from neck to ankles. The luna type of woman is rejoicing, for she will be queen of the beach.

RACE TO BE FAT.

The fashionably thin woman who looks best in this season's evening gown is taking a rest cure and forcible feeding to fill out her shape. In fact, the latest worry of Paris beauties is to achieve a thirty-inch waist and proportional curves before the opening of the Deauville season.

Simultaneously, bobbed hair has been tabooed for beach frolics and a special wig thoroughly waterproof, with take the place of the usual bathing cap, which no respectable mermaid wants to wear.

Mistinguette, who claims the most beautiful lower limbs in the world," is responsible for the launching of the fashion. She was aided and abetted by Henri Letellier, the richest unmarried man in France, and internationally reputed as an expert on beauty, who on assuming office for the first time as Mayor of Deauville, declared the town wide open to all fair bathers in the "altogether."

ONE RESTRICTION.

The only restriction he insisted upon was that the altogether must be artistic, according to the classics.

Meanwhile, the bathing pavilion on the beach, especially constructed to spare lazy visitors the trouble of walking a mile out to sea in pursuit of retiring tides, has been redecorated in gold mosaic to provide a fitting background for the select damsels of Dame Fashion. The golden, shimmering pool, its slender white marble columns and its delicate traceries, will provide a Babylonian setting to the silver-clothed mermaid.

LIKE SHARKS.

No one is expected to bathe. The Beaux Brummels in shark skins, and the glittering sea nymphs will gracefully recline on black satin couches around the tepid sweet water while especially engaged professional bathers of both sexes perform the latest diving and swimming method or play water polo for their delight.

I understand that no effort will be spared to capture and keep for good every unwary dollar that crosses the ocean this season.

DOUGLASS WORKING FOR IRISH IMMIGRANTS

More convenient and less expensive migration to the United States from several Irish counties is expected to be made possible through steps now being taken by the State Department at Washington, according to an announcement by Congressman John J. Douglass of Boston.

Douglass recently visited the State Department in an effort to have a Vice-Consul attend to migration matters in Galway, Sligo, Mayo and Roscommon.

In a letter to Congressman Douglass following his conference in Washington with the assistant secretary of state, requesting relief for Irish immigrants, the department informs the East Boston congressman of the fact that an investigation is now under way with a view to complying with Mr. Douglass's request.

APE THEORY WAS BEING TAUGHT

Bible Students Shocked to Find They Had Been Learning Darwinism

By CORINNE RICH

Dayton, Tenn., June 29 (Universal). — G. W. Rappleyea has changed churches. It was all on account of evolution. He believes in it and his co-religionists do not.

Mr. Rappleyea is the man who started this trial business by having J. T. Scopes arrested in order to create a test case in connection with the new Tennessee law. He didn't think it would affect his own standing in his church.

CLASS SPLITS OVER TEACHER.

Mr. Rappleyea, who is superintendent of the Cumberland Coal and Iron Company here, managed the affairs of the Five Points Sunday School. He also taught the Bible class.

All was peace and harmony in the little frame building for three long years. Then Mr. Rappleyea identified himself in no uncertain fashion with the coming trial that is focussing the interest of the entire country on this small community.

Suddenly the Bible class discovered that for thirty-six months it had been taught the evolutional theory of the descent of man. A part of the class threw up its hands in horror. The other stood up for Mr. Rappleyea with firmness and determination.

CHANGES CHURCHES.

"We will form two classes out of one," said the class. So a delegation informed the teacher, that, on account of its size the group would separate.

Mr. Rappleyea thought he saw another motive. So he told the class that he would move over to the Dayton Church, rather than allow a little thing like the origin of species to disrupt a Sunday school.

The Rev. H. G. Byrd, pastor of the Dayton Church, welcomed Mr. Rappleyea into his fold. He himself is anything but a fundamentalist and holds himself ready to be called to the witness stand in defense of young Scopes, if need be.

State to Help Dayton Care for the Health of Crowds

Dayton, Tenn., June 29 (A.P.)—The State of Tennessee will cooperate with Dayton in caring for the influx of visitors for the Scope evolution trial.

General suggestions by State officers include:

That the State Department of Health detail a sanitary officer to assist the county health officer in the protection of public health; that a sanitary officer go to Dayton to prepare for the increase in population; that the State Department lend to Dayton its apparatus for chlorination of the water supply, and that the department provide any essential advisory service.

ALL JEWS URGED TO HELP PALESTINE DRIVE

Washington, June 29 (A.P.)—Cooperation of all Jews, whether Zionists or non-Zionists, in the upbuilding of Palestine as the Jewish Homeland was urged by Louis Lipsky of New York, chairman, in his opening address at the annual convention of the Zionist Organization of America.

TWO ACCUSED MEN TRY SUICIDE IN COURTHOUSE

Providence, June 29 (A.P.)—Arthur V. Duffey and David Walker, while in a cell room with ten other prisoners, awaiting arraignment for breaking and entering and larceny, attempted suicide today by slashing their arms with razor blades. Walker is in a serious condition, but Duffey's wounds were slight.

PHONE FIGURES JUGGLED, SAYS HUB EXPERT

In order to keep its reproduction cost of plant and buildings at a high rate, the New England Telephone & Telegraph Company figured only 8.83 per cent. for depreciation, Samuel H. Mildram, expert for the city, declared today at a continued hearing before the Public Utilities Commission.

Mildram, testifying in opposition to the general increase in rates of 22 per cent., showed that the company ove ra number of years in figuring its book cost had set up a depreciation amounting to 23.54 per cent.

The reproduction figure less depreciation forms an important part of the rate case.

Mildram further said that instead of the 8.83 figure for depreciation the company should have taken at least 23.5 per cent.

He brought out that $7,066,658 was added to the book cos of the company in an appraisal made in 1910, although he could find no official approval for this move.

He submitted charts showing that copper, which is a material item in plant, costs averaged 16¾ cents a pound on a monthly basis in January, 1913, declined to 11.4 cents in September, 1914, increased to 35.74 cents in March, 1917, fellto a little more than 15 cents in March, 1919, advanced to 22.22 cents in August, 1919, slumped again in August, 1921, to 11.67 cents.

Comparing the stock of the local company with the American Telephone Company of New York, which owns 58 per cent. of the New England company, Mildram declared that until recently the latter company has been able to maintain credit at a higher rate than the A. T. & T. Company.

SOMERVILLE MAN HELD ON CHARGE OF MURDER

Cosmo Di Nitto of Somerville, charged with murdering his best friend, Frank Bronc of River street, Cambridge, was arraigned in Somerville District Court today, pleaded not guilty and waived examination.

Judge O'Brien held him for the Grand Jury in Lowell next September.

The killing occurred in Di Nitto's cobbler shop on Medford street, Somerville, on Saturday night. Di Notto told the police the two men were drinking and a fight started when Bronso struck him, breaking his glasses. Policemen William H. Donvan and Romayne heard shots and arrested Di Notto as he was leaving the shop.

Steamer Rides On Iceberg Far at Sea

Halifax, N. S., June 29 (I.N.S.).—The steamer Saugus of the U. S. Shipping Board ran on an iceberg in a dense fog, but miraculously escaped injury, according to members of the ice patrol, who arrived from Grand Banks today.

The centre of the iceberg, they said, had been scooped out by the action of the water. A flat space seventy feet wide enabled the Saugus to ride the iceberg as if in dry dock.

The weight of the steamer caused the iceberg to sink, enabling the ship to float off and continue her voyage to Europe.

BIG TAXI MOTOR DEAL NEARS COMPLETION

New York, June 29.—Negotiations in the purchase of the Yellow Cab and Coach Manufacturing Company by the General Motors Corporation are expected to be completed this week. Representatives of both parties are still busy with the details. The price, while not announced, is said to be well along in the millions.

The transaction will constitute one of the biggest developments the motor industry has experienced. The Yellow Cab Manufacturing Company, under the guidance of John Hertz, has formed a gigantic organization for the making of omnibuses and taxicabs.

For some time General Motors has been endeavoring to purchase the bus building organization, to consolidate it with its own truck manufacturing unit.

The excellent results obtained by the Yellow Manufacturing Company, as an organization, appealed to the General Motors board of directors.

Another element which played an important part in the consideration of the whole plan was, it is understood, the "Drivurself" system of motoring developed by the Yellow company.

The system allows a man seeking automobile service to go to one of the "Drivurself" garages, which are located in various cities in all parts of the country, and to rent an automobile for a small fee, provided he drives it himself. The growth of this business has been phenomenal.

QUAKE FEAR MENACES LIVES

Railroad Buried, Courthouse Razed and Many Montana Towns Hit; Loss $500,000

Helena, Mont., June 29 (A.P.).—Residents of the Gallatine valley, the apparent centre of the earthquake which shook four States Saturday night and yesterday, remained out in the wide open spaces today, looking back at about $500,000 worth of ruins.

It was a whimsical earthquake. No one was killed. Nearly a score of buildings cracked and fell. There were a half a dozen land slides. A crevice existing at irregular intervals from Manhattan to Three Forks, a distance of ten miles, remains as one of the scars caused by the quake.

The Lombard tunnel of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railroad was caved in and an avalanche at Deer Park covered 500 feet of railroad track nearby, leaving it buried under earth and rocks 100 feet deep. This was caused when a cliff, 800 feet high, toppled and fell.

A force of 2,500 laborers will be put to work clearing the track and the tunnel.

Thousands of persons in Butte, Great Falls, Billings, Livingston, Missoula, Helena and other cities and towns were thrown into near panic and rushed clear of buildings. Yesterday there were slight recurrences at Three Forks, White Sulphur Springs and Anaconda.

Three Forks, Manhattan and Logan sustained the greatest loss. The courthouse at White Sulphur Springs fell and several smaller structures were demolished. The loss there will exceed $100,000, and Three Forks lost about $200,000. Three Forks residents counted forty-one distinct shocks.

Jefferson Island, a short distance above the convergence point, was lowered two feet by the quake.

Hundreds of men were working in the mines at Butte and Anaconda as the earth's surface trembled, but in the 1,000 miles of underground workings there was no damage. The miners rushed to the surface.

Leaning walls and twisted buildings in Manhattan and Three Forks probably will have to be razed by dynamite.

SISTERS TO WED AT A DOUBLE CEREMONY

A number of prominent persons, including Knute K. Rockne, famous football coach of Notre Dame University, will be present at the double wedding tomorrow of the two daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Edward D. Fitzgerald at St. Paul's Church, Dorchester.

Miss Marie E. Fitzgerald will become the bride of Philip J. Byrne, M. I. T., '26, while her sister, Miss Gertrude L. FitzgeraLd, will be married to John C. Merry, Dartmouth '29.

The ceremony will be performed at 5 o'clock by the Rev. Fr. Frederick Allchin. The matron of honor will be Mrs. Thomas P. Culhane, sister of the brides. The bridesmaid will be Miss Ruth McEachern, and the flower girl Miss Agnes FitzgeraLd.

The brides are members of the Proporvulis Club and have been active in dramatic productions in and about Greater Boston. Miss Gertrude is well known as a teacher of dancing. Their parents reside at No. 71 Clifton street, Dorchester.

The ushers will be William R. Corcoran, Cornelius Hourisan of Newport, N. H., Thomas P. Culhane and Joseph J. FitzgeraLd.

THUGS HOLD UP 3 N. Y. GAS STATIONS AND TAKE $2,750

New York, June 29 (A.P.).—Two armed men in an automobile held up three Sohol Brothers' gasoline filling stations within twenty minutes early today and escaped with $2,750 in cash. The robbers bound attendants at a 110th street station with picture wire and escaped with $2,000, the night's receipts. Ten minutes later William Manson of the company's 133rd street station reported the men had robbed him of $500. In another ten minutes the station keeper at 145th street complained to the police that the pair had robbed him of $250 after binding him.

ONLY STARS HAVE EASY SLEDDING

Average Player Is Fighting to Keep Job; Dreary Existence in Minors

By NICK FLATLEY

Fans who watch the large league ball players run around in the sunshine for a couple of hours each afternoon are inclined to think that the young men have the softest job in the universe.

The boys in the bleachers know that the hitters and the fielders pull down large pay checks every two weeks. They know, too, that the season stretches over but half the year; that the salaries are ten times as large, probably, as the same individuals would be collecting had they not possessed the natural knack of smearing the onion, or clutching the hard nit marble.

Nick Flatley.

This, in a way, is all true. The actual playing day hardly runs more than a couple of hours. There are only 154 working days in a year. And the average pay of the regular will now figure well over $5,000 for the season.

It isn't as soft as it looks, though. Baseball, to begin with, isn't all fun for the players. The big stars, who know they can't be knocked off the peak who know they can rate great pay over the years, enjoy it thoroughly. The average player, however, has plenty to worry about.

There are always a flock of aspiring athletes chasing his job. He has the constant worry of the slump, the falling from form that may mean the bench for a while, and the chance for an unsuspected star to step in.

The young players who haven't a lot of money lead very lonesome lives. They can't, as a rule, afford the expense of taking their families around the country. They never see the home folks from one season's end to the other. Coming from small towns, as most of them do, they're strangers in a strange land.

And the career, even for the stars, is a short one. Most of the chaps who come up the large leagues are well along in the twenties. And mighty few of them stick after the early thirties. They have to make the big play of a lifetime in a span that will average less than ten years. Not very long, is it?

Nowadays the athletes have outside jobs. They are in the game for the business advantage, rather than the fun. But even with that, they can't very well get started on any definite road to prosperity. You can't establish any kin dof a real business wiht only six months in the year to give to it.

The ball players are very well paid, but everything considered it eems they earn the money. Getting into the large leagues isn't any picnic, either. It takes nine out of ten players at least five years of professional ball to do that little thing.

The athletes have to work up from the bushes. And life and salary in the tiny circuits are nothing to rave about. Five or six years in minor towns, with poor hotels, bad ball parks, and little money, can become a long, long time. There's always the chance, too, that the big game will be too fast, that the scouts will overlook inherent ability, that a bad accident will put a period on a career.

Down in the Texas League, which is one of the best of the small ones, the players claim it gets so hot in the Summer that they have to soak their shoes during a game in buckets of water to keep their pedals from blistering and the leather in the runners from burning up. The athletes pay for their own shoes.

The boy who is used to a fairly good home and regular eats hasn't much fun in the backwoods towns of the South, or the mountain villages of the Virginias, or the tank stops of the Middle West. The groceries are bad, the hotel beds aren't at all ritzy, and the railroads are tough. But it all has to be endured by the young man who has faith in his destiny and is willing to take the risk.

Occasionally a ball player comes up, and sticks, without the years of the preliminary grind. Frank Frisch did, for one example. But you could check off the good ones on your fingers. Ty Cobb was tossed around for four years before he made the grade.

Tris Speaker spent several seasons in the bushes ere he got his real chance with the Boston Red Sox. Rabbit Maranville admits that he stayed with one New England club because he was able to make change, and was valuable in the ticket office.

Baseball, when you figure it all out, is like every other business. The boys who have the soft jobs usually earned them by a lot of tough work before they stepped into real class.

FENNO OF HUB WITH LOSER IN TENNIS PLAY

Wimbledon, June 29 (A.P.)—Lucien E. Williams of Chicago and J. B. Fenno of Boston were eliminated from the doubles play at the Wimbledon tennis championships today by L. A. Godfree and J. D. P. Wheatley, 6—4, 6—2, 6—0.

The Americans were helpless before the British Davis Cup pair. The winners played to Fenno's weakness in overhand work and at the same time carried on an attack from the net throughout the three one-sided sets.

Mlle. Suzanne Lenglen and Miss Elizabeth Ryan, formerly of California, defeated Miss H. Hogarth and Mrs. P. Doransfield, 6—0, 6—2.

Mme. Billout of France entered the semi-finals of the women's singles by defeating Mrs. McIlquham of England, 6—3, 6—3.

Miss Kathleen McKane, British champion, defeated Miss E. Boyd, 5—1, 6—1. She will meet Suzanne Lenglen in the semi-finals.

The American stars, Hennessey and Casey, who survive in this event, had a day of rest.

Miss Joan Fry, the English girl champion, who may meet Suzanne Lenglen in the finals, celebrated her nineteenth birthday by eliminating one of the two remaining Australians, Miss Akhurst, from the women's singles, 2—6, 6—4, 6—3.

Lawrence B. Rice of Boston and Charles S. Garland of Pittsburgh defeated the Indian pair, S. M. Hadi and S. M. Jacobs, in the doubles, 4—6, 7—5, 6—4, 4—6, 6—2.

CHICAGO A. A. HAS STAR TRACK TEAM

By defeating the Chicago A. A. by a score of 154 points to 40 in the Central A. A. U. championships, the Illinois Athletic Club displayed its great team strength and proved that Coach Johnny Behr's track and field squad will not give up its national team championship title without a strong fight when they take the field at San Francisco on July 3, 4 and 5.

J. A. Cigar baseball nine are looking for a game or two on Saturday, July 4, with any of the leading semi-pro teams in New England. The Smokers have some mighty fine ball tossers, including McDermott, O'Connell and Lane of the 1923 interscholastic championship team, also Simpson of the Millstreams. Teams seeking games phone Back Bay 9415, between 3 and 5 daily, or call Chick Pfau, Parkway 4267, evenings.

RUTH'S ANKLE BELIEVED SPLINTERED

Mr. Jinx is still camped on the trail of one George Herman Ruth, more popularly known as "Babe," "The Sultan of Swat," "The Colossus of Clout," etc., etc., etc.

And from all appearances he intends to follow in the wake of the big fellow whether the latter takes up his residence in the balmy clime of Florida or the trackless wastes of Asia.

When young Mr. Ruth was discharged from St. Vincent's Hospital, New York, a short while ago after a sojourn of several weeks, during which he had a section of his inner machinery removed, he was confident that he had lost his old side kick.

It wasn't long, however, before Jinx again scented his victim and found him back at his old stand at the Yankee Stadium. Immediately the demon hopped onto the diamond and caused such a commotion that the "Bambino" allowed himself to be hit in the ankle by a foul ball.

Ruth now plans to have an X-ray of the injured member taken and according to the club physician, it is very probable that the photographs will reveal a splintered bone or something of the sort which will keep the Yankees' meal ticket "hors de combat" for a few more weeks.

Ruth or no Ruth, though, the Hugmen must play the Red Sox at Fenway Park today, tomorrow and Wednesday.

The visitors claim that if they could play the natives all season they (the Yanks) would once more be leading the procession. Possibly they may have cause to change their opinion before the present series is completed.

The locals have lost something like ten straight games, entirely too many for any big league team to drop in a row, regardless of its class or lack of class. Old John Quinn is the logical pitching selection for the matinee but Manager Fohl is so anxious to have his charges start a winning streak that he may send Ehmke, who is usually effective against the Yanks, to the hill.

Herb Pennock, that gentlemanly and classy southpaw who used to sidewheel the Sox to victory until Harry Frazee decided he was doing it too often and sent him over to the Big Town, was down to do the chucking for the erstwhile champions.

Ehmke vs. Pennock. Sounds pretty good, eh?

Cooney on Mound Against Giants

New York, June 29.—The Braves are making things more than interesting for McGraw's tottering crew, and have experienced such success in recent games with the four time National League champions that Dave Bancroft confidentially expects to make it three out of four.

"The Giants may be tough for some clubs. But our crowd isn't particularly afraid of them," said 'Banny' this morning, discussing the two games his team has played here with the Giants. "I guess we go into the series, knowing we haven't a great deal to lose and lot towin.

After licking the Giants, 8 to 3, on Saturday, the Braves had another game in their bat bag yesterday when Kyle Graham blew the works

NICK FLATLEY, Boston Evening American sport ace, has written a number of special stories for these pages. One of them appears today. Others will be printed during the week. They are in Flatley's inimitable style. If you fail to read them, it is your loss. Don't say that we haven't tipped you off.

Capital Prize Is Worth Real Coin

Well, fans, the scramble for the capital prize in the baseball players' identity contest starts on its second week today. The weekly capital prize, as you all know, consists of one flock of baseball tickets.

Cash customers pay $1.10 per ducat. Those good in multiplication can easily determine the cash value of a set of tickets for the remainder of the season.

The letter which must be written to put contestants in the running for the capital prize must, this week, be on the subject, "What I like best, a circus catch or a home run." The subject for the letter will be changed each week.

Each week until further notice there will be, in addition to the daily award of five pairs of tickets, a weekly capital prize. This prize means a grandstand seat for the rest of the season at one of the local parks.

This capital prize will be awarded to the fan who wins one of the identity prizes and who in addition, sends with the prize-winning identification the best and neatest 100-word letter on the subject announced herein.

Fans must use printed blank in identifying photos of ball players.

Letters based on the identity of the player printed today will be the first eligible in this week's contest. The winner of the first capital prize will be announced on next Wednesday.

SEMI-FINALS IN BOYS' NET PLAY TODAY

Play in the State boys and junior championship tournaments will be resumed this morning on the Longwood courts at Chestnut Hill.

Andrew C. Ingraham of Oakland, R. I., W. Barry Wood, Jr., and John W. Putnam have reached the semifinals. Ingraham is to play the winner of the Rice-Reagan match. In the junior singles, Arthur Ingraham, Jr., older brother of the candidate for boys honors, will play R. S. Turner in the semi-finals, while F. L. Luce, Jr., of Andover, and Malcolm Kirbride of Groton School will meet in the other half of the draw.

WALKER IS AT BEST FOR BOUT WITH GREB

New York, June 29.—Betting odds favored Harry Wills and Micky Walker to defeat Charley Weinert and Harry Greb respectively in the bouts Thursday night. Reports were that Harry was not in the best of condition, but these could not be substantiated.

By ED CURLEY.

New York, June 29.—When Mickey Walker finished his daily dozen at Johnny Collins' health farm at Summit he convinced us that he will give Harry Greb the battle of his life. If Michael can or rather will fight as he worked he will beat the Pittsburgh windmill.

Of course when you visit a camp you naturally incline towards the lad that goes through his stuff. Mickey does more than sway your views. He works so conscientiously that he impresses you forcibly as to his conquering chances.

To say that Mickey looks good only tells the truth in a small way. He never looked better. Before he started work Mickey said he felt lazy. The way he smacked his partners around madey ou feel delighted that he was not feeling good.

We will let you in on a secret. Mickey is getting big. Which means he will not remain very long in the welterweight division. This he will deny with great vehemence, but it is on the up and up just the same. Mickey weighed around 151 before he started work but his tremendous big shoulders give him the appearance of a middleweight.

Teddy Hayes, who is directing his training, said he was going to build up Mickey and he had done so with a vengence. While Mike has a good pair of legs, barring the injured toe, his strength lies above the waist. His build along the lines of a Berlenbach as far as power is concerned, but is ten minutes faster than the Astoria "assassin."

Mickey is working under the most advantageous circumstances. His camp is situated on one of the hills of the Orange Mountains and the atmosphere is simply sublime. His training is done outdoors, where he enjoys all the conveniences possible.

For instance, his punching bag is hung on a wide sweeping apple tree, which keeps away the strong rays of thes un, but allows enough heat to penetrate the branches to make Mickey perspire. When he finishes that stunt he skips the rope in a comfortable open-air handball court.

Then comes the boxing in a ring that is as perfect as the rings in the big clubs. Everything is regulation style. There were close to 500 people present when he went through the motions of fighting. One thing about Mickey, when he boxes, he forgets that the man before him is a partner. Hec onsiders him an opponent and battles accordingly. That is the reason his partners demand heavily padded headgear.

Ganay in Bow at Revere Track

Gustav Ganay, the French paced rider, who makes his first appearance of the season at the Revere cycle track Wednesday, will be recalled by the cycling devotees as the most popular of last year's foreign invasion.

The Marseilles youth has been the sensation of Europe's indoor season. Besides winning the championship of his own country indoors, Ganay repeatedly scored wins in Belgium, Germany, Switzerland and Italy. Such sterling engine chasers as Grassin, Linart, Seres, Miquel and Guinard fell before the activities of the French youth.

The French midget will have to be at his best Wednesday night when he pedals against Charley Verkeyn, Frank Keenan and Charles Jaeger. Verkeyn and Keenan displayed such excellent racing last week that they have ridden into an avalanche of popularity.

Charles Jaeger, who makes his debut to the beach fans Wednesday, is regarded as the coming champion.

In conjunction with the paced contest the first of a series of races for the New England sprint title will be staged. Heats, semi-finals and a final will be run off.

"Soapine" scores in famous soaking test

Brown University scientists prove it best for washing

Exhaustive experiments with a solution of Soapine and water at the Research laboratories of Brown University proved that Soapine really does wash and rinse clothes cleaner.

After 8-hour soaking tests Dr. J. R. Mohler reported the dirt in Soapine suds was only 1/32 as much as in the average of 12 other soaps tested.

Billion boxes already sold

SOAPINE is not a sudden-blooming new product. This famous old soap powder has a history of long and faithful service. Already more than a billion boxes of Soapine have been sold to women who know it has no equal for washing clothes clean.

Give Soapine a trial in your home. See how it sucks even the dirtiest garments beautifully white and clean. Without hard washing. Use it for all cleaning tasks. Know that your home is free from germs as well as dirt. Genuine Soapine has a picture of a whale on the package. Get it at your grocer's today. Or write us for a generous free sample. Kendall Mfg. Little hands safe to touch food

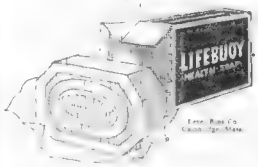
It's easy to get children to clean up —with Lifebuoy



YOUNGSTERS troup in at meal-time! Grimy hands, smudgy faces—splinters, scratches and bruises! Danger-dirt rubbed into pores and broken skin. A very real menace to health.

Soap-shy children just naturally take to Lifebuoy's big billowy, creamy lather—invigorating, tingling, pore-cleansing. Let each child have his very own cake of Lifebuoy and see the new interest he'll take in keeping clean.

And you know that little hands are then safe to touch food.

What cleanness! What spic-and-spanness! Smooth, velvety skin—firm flesh glowing with health! Bewitching curls, glistening, manly cow-licks—captivating smiles flashing the spontaneous joy of childhood health!

Health, like beauty, depends so much on the degree of cleanness. Hands purified many times a day with Lifebuoy do not menace health. Lifebuoy-cleansed hands are safe hands.

SUPPOSE you're busy, Hazel, and wife do not tell each other everyw with a girl for years and years.

Suppose you'd shared every se ment with her—and none of secret of larks that no one else knew about but you two—

Suppose there were some regret- stages in those mutual youthful years which neither of you wanted to advertise—

And then someone says friend married and went to live in a dis- tant city with her husband—

And you begin to write to her every week in a romantic effort to keep up the old, dear intimate asso- ciation—hidden here about the old days of romance and confiding every personal detail of your daily life—

Then suppose one day a letter came asking you to be matron of honor in what you and we SHE SHOWED HER HUSBAND EV- ERYTHING, AND HE HAD BEEN CHUCKLING ABOUT SOME OF YOUR REMARKS!

How would you feel?

Stoop to Cussedness.

Hazel feels very sad, indeed. To think that Ana should stoop to confidential letters in a stranger man! She's through with Ana for life, and she means to write her a nasty letter telling her so. And, in the meantime, won't I please say a few things about married women who tell their friends secrets to their husbands?

I will, Hazel, but I won't guar- antee the popularity of my remarks. Most married women think that telling the beans is one of the in- alienable rights of being a Mrs. In fact, they'd be shocked if they realized that there were several things that were none of hubby's business and should be kept locked within Wife's bosom.

Marriage is a grand old institution and I don't know how we could get along without it. But it's amazing to see how many principles of sheer human behavior slip off when the wedding ring slips on.

When once we have a wedded part- ner in back de, and the sacred tra- ditions of the home to shield us, we stoop to cussedness that would never have entered our heads when single.

For instance, what would you think of an unparried male or woman who violated the confidence of a friend?

You'd think very poorly, wouldn't you? And yet you're not even sur- prised when that same person, hav- ing married, tells all he knows or she knows to his or her mate. In fact, you have had your suspicions of any under in which the husband and wife do not tell each other everyw

Why Tell Everything.

You'd be thankful if you found that YOUR wife or YOUR husband "was keeping something from you," wouldn't you?

BUT WHY IN TIME SHOULD MARRIED PEOPLE TELL EACH OTHER EVERYTHING?

We assume perhaps when we marry and assume the obligations of partners, but we still remain in- timacies with the obligations of in- dividuals. We have still our own most sole to keep, regardless of the claims of husband or wife.

We should be generous and adapta- ble, and we have it, but we should aim to immortalize. And no love is ideal or noble which permits any invasion of those individual re- sponsibilities.

All of which means that the mar- ried woman who tells her husband her friends' intimate confidences is nothing more nor less than a traitor, and should be treated ac- cordingly.

And the same thing goes for the man. There are business con- fidences which no man has a right to tell his wife and the bitterest pro- pickings inviting others, which it is most discourable to reveal.

SECRETS OF HEALTH

By Charles A. L. Reed, M.D.
Former President of the American Medical Association

YOUR body is made up of very many of the something like a hundred elements that constitute the universe.

These elements embrace such things as carbon, oxygen, hydrogen, calcium, sodium and phosphorus.

You encounter all of these ele- ments in various combinations in nature, but you get them into your system as constituents of food.

These elements are all drawn from the earth by plants and reach your system either directly through the vegetable food that you consume or indirectly through meats derived from animals that feed upon the plants.

These elements themselves, com- bined in the various forms of food, are classified or grouped as proteins, occurring chiefly in meats, that are the building material of the body; as carbohydrates, occurring in starches and sugars, that the best producer as stamina, occurring in most foods and that are the regu- lators of the changes that we call metabolism and that are essential for the health of the body; and, finally, as mineral salts that are essential for the proper upbuilding of the bones, and that enter into the formation of many body juices.

Calcium, which you now en-counter chiefly in the form of lime and phosphorus, with which you used to be familiar in the form of match heads, are the two great bone builders.

It is important, therefore, espe- cially during the bone-forming period of childhood, that the food should be selected as far as possible with reference to its richness in these two elements.

Cheese is the animal product rich- est in both calcium and phosphorus, condensed milk comes next, and, finally, fish, shellfish and meats.

Molasses is the one cereal deriva- tive that is highest in calcium, while phosphorus is abundant in oats, gra- ham flour and whole wheat flour.

The vegetables that carry a high content of both calcium and phos- phorus are beans, turnip-top greens, watercress, carrots, cabbage and spinach.

Among the fruits those high-st in these elements are, first and fore- most, dried figs, then currants, prunes, dried apples and pineapples.

A little attention to these im- portant facts, with a little effort to provide these articles and teach your children to like them, will go a long way's toward cemleting a well-balanced diet.

MEDBURY SAYS—

By John P. Medbury

A NEW York chemist has just invented a non-smearing lip- stick, and a girl can now kiss a man without getting it all over his collar.

THE average fellow wants a little love that won't come off.

EVERY time a girl kisses a man she leaves red roses on his face. His cheeks look like a report card.

A GUY went home the other night and his mother thought he was bleeding.

SHE told him he ought to start using a safety razor.

HIS face was so red that he could have flagged a train with it.

THE street department wanted to use it for a lantern.

IT'S difficult for a girl to kiss a man now-a-days and keep it a secret.

HER lip-stick is her advertising de- partment.

ONE guy walked in the house the other evening and his father thought he had scarlet fever.

HE wipes his sweetheart's com- plexion all over his mother's towels.

SHE doesn't have to ask how many times his girl kissed him. All she has to do is count the laundry.

THE women also use a poor grade of powder. A man hugs a dame a couple of times and he looks like he's been out in a snow storm.

ONE fellow had so much powder on his clothes the other night that on his way home he was mis- taken for a Klu Klux Klansman.

INSTEAD of a handkerchief, a man has to carry a whisk broom in his pocket.

BEFORE my fiancee kisses him good night she runs the vacuum cleaner over him.

IT'S getting so that a fellow won't call to see a girl unless he wears his old clothes.

IF she wants to sit in the swing and spoon he puts his overalls on.

SOME girls buy such a terrible grade of rouge that after they kiss a man a fe wtimes he has to wash his face with turpentine.

WHY A CAMEL DOESN'T GET THIRSTY.

By Foxy Grandpa

BOBBY, Bunny and I sat in front of the enclosure at the Zoo where the camels were kept.

Bobby opened a fat peanut, put it in his little mouth and after he had swallowed it, looked up in my face and said:

"Camel have funny feet, haven't they, Foxy Grandpa?"

"Did you ever try to run on the sand, Bobby?" I asked.

"Yes, sir," he replied, "but I can never run very fast in the sand."

"If you had feet like that camel you could," I ventured.

"Why?" asked Bobby.

"Look at those big soft pads on the bottom of his feet," I explained. "That is just what they are for—to keep the camel from sinking into the sand, like yours do."

"Wouldn't you think a camel would get awfully tired, Foxy Grandpa, carrying around that big lump on his back?" asked the boy.

"You never got tired carrying your lunch basket, did you, Bobby?" I laughed.

"Why, no," he replied, looking at me as if I had asked him a riddle. "What do you mean, Foxy Grandpa?"

"That hump on the camel's back is his lunch basket, Bobby," I de- clared.

Bobby's eyes widened and I con- tinued.

"Yes, you see, when a camel makes his long trips on the desert there is no grass for him to eat and it would be impossible to carry much food in the saddlebags, so nature has provided him with his food. Because that hump is noth- ing but fat. And as the camel travels for days he lives on the fat of his own back—with only perhaps a few snatches of a thorn bush which grows in the desert or a hand- ful of dates at night. Often, when a camel starts on a long journey he will have a very fat lump on his back, but when he gets to his des- tination it will be almost gone."

"Think of that!" gasped Bobby. "And he doesn't drink water, does he?"

"Yes," I answered, "he drinks water. But he can put it in his reservoirs and save it to use up just as he wants it."

"Please tell me about them," asked Bobby.

"It's like this," I explained. "A camel has four stomachs. And those stomachs are lined with row after row of cells. So before a camel starts on a trip he drinks a lot more water than he needs at the time and stores it up in those cells. Then when he gets entirely in the desert he just draws on his reserve supply and goes on his way."

"My!" exclaimed Bobby, starting on his second bag of peanuts, "wouldn't it be fine to have four stomachs! Think how much more you could eat!"

DON'T BE AN OLD "DUNNO"

By Lucy Lowell

THE cool cashier ahead like an angry river, bringing up against blue-white forks of lightning. We were driving straight into the storm.

A sheet of rain hit us broadside, and the engine died. I climbed out to cover the radiator, carelessly leav- ing the door ajar. The tempest caught it and left it hanging by one hinge. Our efforts to replace it were vain.

I cooked the engine to turn over and eventually we came to a dilapi- dated little garage. Inside I found a medium-built young man staring vacantly at the rain from amidst an awful clutter of tires, auto parts, oil cans, maps and what not. I've never seen its neither looked at me nor moved when I told him about the door.

"I dunno as I could fix it," he answered sadly.

"You're a mechanic, aren't you? This is your garage, isn't it? You must know something about cars!"

"Yes, but the garage business ain't so good now. And some of them doors go on easy and some don't. I dunno as I could put yours on."

"Can't you try! Look at the storm! We want to get out of it. Putting the door back is a simple matter."

"Well, I dunno. Anyways I dun- no as you'd want to pay me what it'd be worth, goin' out and gettin' wet and all." And he continued to gaze at nothing, every line of his gaunt figure dreaming.

A mile farther on another garage man waded through the tempest, gripped the door, and lifted it into place before you could count ten.

"You do better work than your competitor up the road," I remarked. He roared with laughter.

"You mean 'Old Dunno'? Why that fool 'dunno' he's a dolt. And he won't be living very long if he doesn't snap out of it."

Nothing wrong with him except ing that he's afraid to take a chance. First it was only with big things. He'd want to do something, and he'd figure and figure on it so long that he'd either get away from him or somebody else'd do it first.

"He's got a good location where he is, but he was afraid to put in a good stock and a wrecker.

"He'll hang down job after job cause he dunno' whether he'll get him or not.

HEARD ABOUT THE HOUSE

"My father would never say the things to my mother that you say to me. He had too much respect for her."

"Yeah, and do you know why? She wouldn't dare insult him the way you do me. She'd ceaselessly let him keep a little pocket change for himself."

"I didn't cook this meal, so if you don't like it tell the cook about it and stop complaining to me."

"Well, let me tell you right now, the biggest rest I get is at the office. At any rate down there no- body is nagging me every minute of the day."

"What excuse are you going to in- vent for dinner being an hour late tonight?"

WE WISH

That the neighbors next door would have wordless quarrels.

That our wife could make buck- wheat cakes as light as our pocket- book.

That we could get rheumatism in the arm from raking in the poker chips.

That it was against the law to lift a finger more than 23 per cent. of the bill.

A pair of black patent leather pumps were bought last Easter for little Marion, aged four years.

Her mother, noting a slight lameness of late, asked, "Do your shoes hurt, Marion?"

No, mama, the shoes don't hurt but my foot does."

Itching is entirely unnecessary

Are you suffering from eczema or some other itching, burning eruption for which you have tried various treat- ments in vain—then given up in des spair? Thousands whose skins are now clear have gone through this same experience. At last they tried Resinol, Thereafter, healing ointment stopped the itching at once and soon all trace of the disease was gone. Let Resinol end you of your skin trouble!

FINANCE

By B. C. Forbes

Seattle, June 29.—Business in your locality probably is better than imagined. Since coming here I have been told repeatedly that retail trade was poor, that it was running behind a year ago.

Well, the Chamber of Commerce got together a representative gathering of local retail merchants in all lines so that we might talk things over. After a short speech, questions and discussion were in order.

One bright young merchant proposed that each man present write down exactly how his business has been doing this year as compared with a year ago.

The slips were handed to me, and I have analysed them. This is the showing:

No fewer than 60 per cent. report improvement over last year; 35 per cent. report a decline; 5 per cent. report no change. Surely that does not justify pessimism.

Moreover, the worst decline reported is 15 per cent., whereas increases as high as 20, 30 and 35 per cent. are shown. In most instances, however, the change either way is not great.

Why, then, do we have so much complaining?

The two matters giving retailers most concern, it was clearly brought out, are the recent phenomenal growth in instalment business and of chain stores.

In reply to questions, I ventured the opinion that the outburst of instalment plans will be overcome and that after many sellers have had their fingers burned, readjustment will develop. After that, however, this plan of merchandising will enter a sounder and doubtless permanent phase. It has come to stay, as I see it.

So have chain stores, without shadow of doubt. Indeed, I believe that they are only in their infancy. We may or may not like the prospect, but the prudent business man tries to face facts which can't be ignored and strives to fit his activities into the changing scheme of things.

The whole trend is towards the elimination of waste effort, the elimination of avoidable costs. Better the organization of distribution, to the end that more and more workers will be released from the production of the bare necessaries of life so that you and I may be able to buy and enjoy more and more of life's comforts, conveniences and luxuries.

Whatever harmonizes with this universal trend is destined to survive. Whatever doesn't; won't.

BIGGEST 'NEAR' SILK MILL IS AFTER SITE

By FRANK H. MELOON
Financial Editor

American Viscose Company of Marcus Hook, Tenn., largest manufacturers of near silk in the world, will build a mill in New England, the writer is informed. A site at Lowell is said to have been definitely rejected, and Rhode Island is expected to be decided upon finally. The new mill will be a plant for winding, spooling, quilling and dressing for the New England trade.

I am told Secretary George A. Rich of the Boston Stock Exchange has attended every Republican national convention since 1892. Of the Presidents and Vice-Presidents nominated and elected since that time, besides the present executives, only former President Taft survives. Among the most notable of former Vice-Presidents was Levi P. Morton, who died, aged 96, in 1920. He was born in Shoreham in the State of President Coolidge's nativity.

Myron E. Forbes, president of the Pierce Arrow Motor Car Co., might be expected to have no "regrets," in view of the wonderful come back his company has achieved, accompanied by spectacular advances in the stock market, the preferred issue, for instance, having practically doubled its price this year with a rise of around 40 points.

* * *

But with all that he has accomplished, Mr. Forbes seems to have a little private regret, which he voiced the other day. "You remember," he said to one of his associates, "I told you when we were trying out our new bus on the Buffalo roads a year ago last February that someone with patience would make a lot of money in Pierce-Arrow stocks. If I had followed my own prediction I might have made a great deal without working so hard for it. But I happen to be an automobile manufacturer, not a speculator and the rawards seem to come more slowly in that field."

President Straus of S. W. Straus & Co. says: "America is in the midst of the greatest building boom it or any other nation has ever undertaken." He predicts a program of $6,000,000,000 this year, $250,000,000 in excess of last year. Such a program should have its effect on all lines of business, he feels.

* * *

Malleable Iron Fittings Company, Branford, Ct., says: "We are looking for improved conditions within the next two months. Prices stationary at the present time. We are operating about 50 per cent. of normal. Stocks of goods on hand normal. We can see no impending change in the wage situation. Our customers buying conservatively."

SAVINGS DEPOSITS IN BOSTON DISTRICT UP

Federal Reserve Board announces savings deposits reported by 800 banks distributed throughout the United States were $7,829,130,000 on June 1, compared with $7,790,730,000 on May 1. All districts show small increase except the Minnesota district, which reports a slight decline.

Boston, with 64 mutual savings banks reporting, had deposits in these banks of $1,314,076 on June 1. Although 196 savings banks of all kinds reported from the Chicago Federal Reserve district, the deposits in them aggregated only $946,020 at the beginning of this month.

RAIL CONSOLIDATION PLANS TO GO FORWARD

"I do not expect railroad consolidation plans will all be held up pending decision in the Nickel Plate merger case by the Commerce Commission," said L. F. Loree, replying to inquiry as to whether development of his fifth trunk line would be temporarily held up. He said the Nickel Plate was only one development from disposition of which only general inferences could be drawn. It is not a test case, in his opinion.

"There have been several surprises announced in recent months involving leases of various railroads and other similar arrangements are probably in the making," he said, refusing to be more specific.

WOOLWORTH STORES HAVE 15 P. C. JUNE INCREASE

"I estimate sales will be about $240,000,000 this year," said President Parsons of F. W. Woolworth Co., sailing for a two months' trip to Europe. "If we carry out this estimate it will be about a 12 per cent. increase over last year. Our earnings should show the same percentage of increase. To May 1 our sales were running in the same raito, and showed a 10 per cent. increase over last year. June thus far has shown a 15 per cent. increase over lastyear, and we expect this to continue through the month."

Judge Gary Gives 14 Golden Rules for Health

Judge Elbert H. Gary has fourteen golden rules for health; (1) exercise in the open air, but do it moderately; breathe deeply of pure air; (3) leave alcoholic stimulant alone; (4) drink pure water; (5) eat little meat; eat red meat but once a week; (6) eat little starch, fat or sweets; eat plenty of green vegetables containing mineral salts; (7) follow regular habits; (8) get plenty of sleep; (9) work hard, mentally and physically; (10) lead a good, clean life; (11) keep an even temper and avoid excitement; (12) never get angry; (13) obey the Golden Rule; (14) eat only to satisfy hunger, not to please the palate. He says: "I've followed the principle that underlies these rules most of my life. I've kept my conscience clear. I've worked hard and I've been abstemious."

Judge Gary is to take a second course of training in dietetics at Gary Hospital in Birmingham to last ten days or two weeks.

SAVINGS BANK MEN CONSIDER ST. PAUL PLAN

As a result of the St. Paul reorganization plan and the active opposition, headed by Roosevelt & Son of New York, to the readjustment as proposed, the Massachusetts Savings Bank Association, members of which hold considerable amounts of St. Paul bonds, organized a committee to consider the plan, and a questionnaire has been sent out to savings banks of Massachusetts to ascertain their position.

Charles A. Collins, president of the Lynn Institution for Savings, and a member of the firm of Collins, Spalding & Co., investment bankers of Boston, is chairman. Other members of the committee are James Young of the Salem Savings Bank, Edward B. Carney of the Lowell Institution for Savings, Henry West of the Institution for Savings in Roxbury, and Charles L. Burleigh of the Worcester Mechanics Savings Bank.

The committee has held conferences in New York with Frederick H. Ecker, chairman of the St. Paul bondholders committee, and also with representatives of Roosevelt & Sons. Meetings were also held at Poland Springs at the National Conference of Savings Banks and in Boston.

It is calculated that savings banks in Massachusetts hold about $12,000,000 par value of St. Paul bonds, about two-thirds of which are affected under the plan and one-third is not, being senior bonds which are not disturbed. The bonds are quite widely distributed among the 196 savings banks of the State.

PUBLIC-OWNED DOCKS BRING BIG PROFIT

By EDWIN J. CLAPP,
Financial Expert of the Hearst Papers.

San Francisco, June 29.—Public ownership in all the country can produce no better exhibit than the $50,000,000 dock property at San Francisco, operated by the State Board of Harbor Commissioners.

This $50,000,000 of piers, roadways, waterfront lots and public-owned belt line, cost not one cent to the tax payers of San Francisco or California. It has only $15,000,000 of bonds outstanding against it.

The rest of the property was built up out of surplus revenue remaining after meeting all costs of operation and maintenance, and after paying interest and amortization on the bonds. During the last three years the surplus revenues available for new construction have amounted to $2,500,000. That is a financial record of which any private corporation could be proud.

The shipping accommodated by these State piers represents San Francisco's chief industry—Charles F. Spear, head of the harbor board, has discovered that the coastwise and oversea steamers, each time they come to port, spend an average of $13,200 on provisions, repairs, dock dues and wages to freight handlers. That amounts to $83,000,000 annually he finds.

SHIPS NEEDN'T WAIT.

That is more than $50,000,000 spent annually for new building construction.

Five million dollars worth of new docks and warehouses are being built. San Francisco boasts that there is no record there of a ship having to drop anchor and wait for a berth to discharge. Today, the public docks handle ten million tons of freight, general cargo, carried by eighty-three oversea, intercoastal, coastwise, bay and river steamers.

This does not include huge shipments of sugar for the bay refineries and bulk oil cargoes despatched direct from the oil works on the bay. In all, twenty-four million tons of water borne freight annually passes through the the Golden Gate.

A large part of the Harbor Commission's revenue does not come from ships at all. An example is the income from the great ferry building at the foot of Market street, through which pass 70,000 commuters a day.

The railroad companies owning the ferries pay handsomely for the ferry slips. The news stand concession brings $4,100 a month—a third of all newspaper street sales are made in this building.

PROFITS BUILT HIVE.

Altogether the Harbor Commission's ferry building takes in a revenue of $450,000 a year. It costs $150,000 to operate, so the net is $30,000 a year, a good return on the building that cost less than a million.

There is a further net of $130,000 for railroad rentals of ferry slips at Central Basin and $186,000 from rentals of waterfront land the Harbor Commission reclaimed from the sea. The commission's belt line connecting with all railroads and serving all piers earns a net of $100,000 a year.

So it is not strange that the Harbor Commission was able to build the entire belt line out of surplus revenues, and out of surplus revenues has just spent $800,000 repaving the Embarcadero, or waterfront street, and constructing a subway carrying the Embarcadero under Market street.

State ownership, instead of city ownership, has made it easier for the Harbor Commission to keep this enterprise on a profitable basis, instead of reducing its revenue unnecessarily and making it a burden on the taxpayers. State ownership is free from pressure of local politicians in letting contracts and allocating new improvements.

Other coast cities with local harbor commissions have not fared so well.

SCHULTE WORKERS ARE GIVEN RAISE IN PAY

Raise of 10 per cent. is given to every employe of the Schulte cigar stores and a similar increase is assured them for each year hereafter, according to announcement by President D. A. Schulte. Increase is additional to regular bonuses for special efforts in building business of each salesman's store.

Keene, N. H., Bonds

Union School District of Keene, N. H., awarded $20,000 4¼ per cent. serial bonds, due 1926 to 1929, to Harris, Forbes & Co., at 100.03. E. H. Rollins & Sons bid 100.025, Merrill, Oldham & Co. 99.82.

What Is Man's Duty?

To Deal Justly With Others, Make Himself Useful and DEVELOP HIS OWN BRAIN

How much of your time do you spend in this way, reading? Answer that question and you answer another question, "How much will you amount to eventually, twenty years from now?"

St. James defines "pure religion" and man's duty toward his Creator, as above.

There are OTHER duties, and in this picture, a poster made for the National Association of Book Publishers, Rockwell Kent shows a man discharging ONE IMPORTANT EARTHLY DUTY, feeding the mind.

It is the duty of every intelligent man throughout his working life, to develop, for the use of the world, himself and his fellow creatures, a good strong body and a good mind.

The dullest fool knows that he must feed his body if he wants to get work out of it. Say to him, "You ate while you were at school, why do you go on eating now?" and he will answer you, "Don't you know that I must go on eating STEADILY so my body may be strong to do good work?"

That rule applies equally to READING AND THE MIND.

The body cannot live on the beefsteak you ate at school. The mind cannot live on study or reading that you did as a school boy or a college boy.

Your body works today with the strength that your food gave you yesterday. Your mind works today with the strength born of the thinking and reading of yesterday and other yesterdays.

Rockwell Kent's picture shows a man worth while engaged in an occupation WORTH WHILE. As this man sits in the log cabin, reading intently, so Lincoln as a youth sat in his father's little cabin, early in the last century.

As you look at this man you see that as he reads HE THINKS. As you read Lincoln's history you know that as HE READ he also THOUGHT.

To go through a book swiftly and without thinking is like motoring through a beautiful country with your eyes shut. It is not necessary to read a GREAT NUMBER of books, not necessary to read more than half an hour a day, if you read earnestly, persistently, understandingly, and read the right books.

You can eat all your stomach needs in half an hour, and eat slowly, too. You can read all that your brain needs, as much as the average man's brain can DIGEST, of serious reading in half an hour, and read slowly.

Hundreds will ask, "WHAT SHALL I READ?"

Merely to say, "Read good books," is a little vague. To give an answer even one-tenth complete would discourage many.

Here is an easy program:

In Shakespeare read at least all of Macbeth, Hamlet, King Lear and the Tempest.

Read Professor James' textbook on psychology to understand the spiritual machine that is working in your body.

Read a good simple book on astronomy. Ball's "Story of the Heavens" will do. A microbe living on a little pebble on the edge of the ocean would like to know something about the ocean—the things on the other side of it, and the other pebbles along the beach. We are microbes, living on a pebble called the earth, which faces the ocean of ether. The other planets and suns are the other pebbles.

Get Montaigne's essays at the public library, or better still, BUY the book, read it every little while, a page at a time. Reading Montaigne you absorb the thought of a man of great intelligence and benefit by his reading, to which he devoted his entire life. Montaigne's father followed an unusual method. He put his son under German scholars, speaking no French. They and the boy talked only Latin.

Read, if you can, the following, which may sound "heavy": Buckle's "History of Civilization in England," Guizot's "Civilization," "Montesquieu's "Spirit of Laws." Add to them Wells' "Outline of History." You can get that now at a reasonable price.

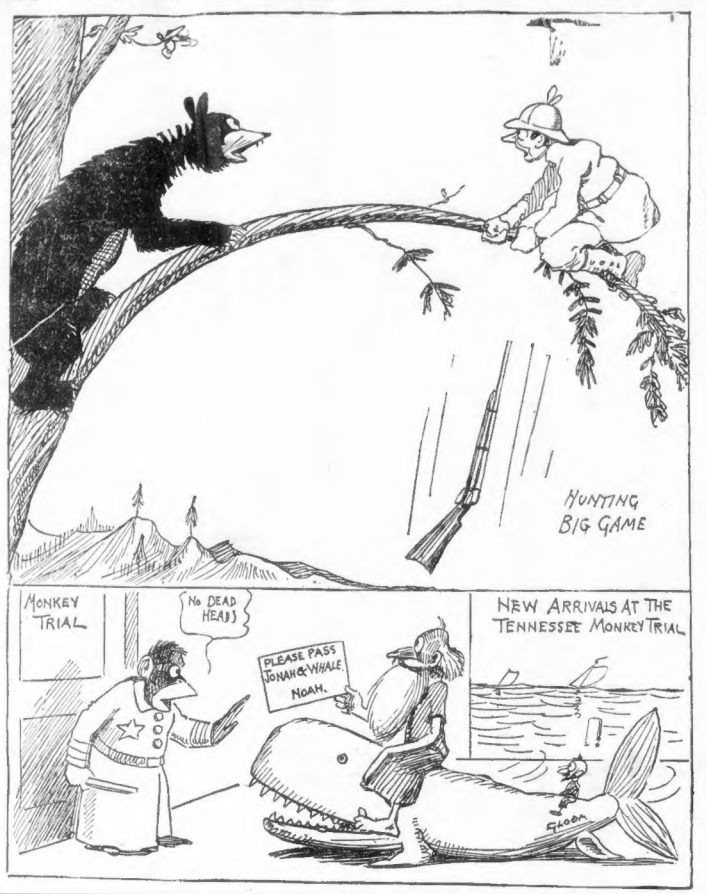
The last four books thoroughly digested, plus a book on astronomy, one on geology, showing how the earth has changed, plus Wallace's comprehensive volume of "Darwinism" will give what might be called the foundation of a reasonable education.

It is announced that the circulation of Chicago's Public Library increased last year by 500,000 volumes. That's good news, especially if in the 500,000 increase are included a reasonable percentage of books worth while.

P. S.—Whatever you else may do, READ. And don't imagine that looking up words for cross-word puzzles means getting an education or any part of an education.

Merely collecting WORDS with the hope of becoming educated is about as intelligent as it would be to collect tools in the hope of becoming a mechanic. To be able to use ONE tool is better than collecting a thousand. So with words.

How Not to Grow Old -:- -:- By T. E. Powers



MRS. SOLOMON SAYS—

By Helen Rowland

VERILY, verily, in every woman's life there be three men; nay, four, which are needful to her happiness.

For an husband is only an husband. But a doctor is a comfort.

And a lawyer is a necessity.

And a pastor is a luxury!

Then, I charge thee, when thou feelest inspired to confess thy sorrows and impelled to "EMOTE," afflict not thine husband with thy woes and thy complexes.

For tears shall but dampen his ardour; and his stern inspireth him only to the fetching of the ammonia and the smelling salts. He hath NO dramatic instinct!

Helen Rowland

Go to. A doctor is filled with sympathy, and while a woman poureth forth her "sufferings" and describeth her "symptoms," he will harken with patience and gentleness and "Dear-me's!"

But an husband saith, "Oh-cheerup"—and goeth to find the pepsin.

Behold, a lawyer is full of understanding. When a woman weepeth and reciteth her "wrongs," and revaileth how she hath been "persecuted" and "abused," he listeneth with gravity.

But an husband greeteth her words with yawnings and "Oh-forget-it!" and "Izzat so!"

Lo, a pastor comforteth the heart, and giveth ear while a woman discusseth her soul and descanteth upon her spiritual yearnings.

But, an husband saith, "Umm!" and harkeneth with one braincell, while he figureth his income-tax with the other.

Wherefore, then, are the multitudes astonished, when a woman falleth down and worshippeth her pastor, or vampeth her doctor, or elopeth with her lawyer?

For the reason is more obvious than a porcelain tooth and plainer than a stage-beauty-before-breakfast.

Verily, verily, an husband may satisfy the heart; but the spirit and the vanity feed upon a pat on the cheek and a charge account.

Then, blessed be the doctor and the lawyer and the pastor, without whom a woman's emotions would explode as new wine in old ginger ale bottles!

For, alas, a woman MUST "emote!" And these are her only escape-valves!

SELAH!

WORDS OF THE WISE MEN

There is one art of which every man should be master—the art of reflection.—Coleridge.

Of all thieves, fools are the worst. They rob you of time and temper.—Goethe.

* * *

Every man is the maker of his own fortune, and must be, in some measure, the trumpet of his fame.—Dryden.

Let friendship creep gently to height; if it rush to it, it may soon run itself out of breath.—Fuller.

* * *

Murmur at nothing. If our ills are reparable, it is ungrateful; if remediless, it is vain.—Colton.

In the intercourse of social life it is by little acts of watchful kindness recurring daily and hourly, by words, by tones, by gestures, by looks, that affection is won and preserved.—Sala.

Every one who lives in the habitual practice of any voluntary sin cuts himself off from Christianity.—Addison.

* * *

All crimes are indeed sins, but not all sins crimes. Sin may be in the thought or secret purpose of a man, of which neither a judge, nor a witness, nor any man can take notice.—Hobbes.

* * *

How a man can have a quiet and cheerful mind under a great burden and load of guilt, I know not, unless he be very ignorant.—Ray.

Wants to Do Sewing

Helping Hand Editor:

Perhaps there is some reader of your column who would help me in my search. I am in rather straitened circumstances and would like to find some place where sewing is given out to be done at home. Anyone who would give me information about such work in Boston to be done at home would be doing me a very great favor. E.B.

Back in Rent

Helping Hand Editor:

I am an ex-service man, out of work and have four children who are badly in need of clothing. Three girls, 3, 4 and 5, and boy 10. I am back in my rent and a few other bills and am unable to meet them. I hope to hear from some kind person. J. F.

Has Eight Children

Helping Hand Editor:

I have eight children, girls, seven, four and three years and baby seven months old and boys, eight, seven and six. The girls need dresses, underwear and stockings, boys need suits and shoes, sizes thirteen, ten and one-half, eight and six. One boy has leakage of the heart and would like some toys. I would appreciate some bungalow aprons, size 44, and suit, 38, for husband. What little he makes hardly buys enough to eat and pay rent. I can make over anything. MRS. MARY V.

Need Working Clothes

Helping Hand Editor:

I have been compelled to stop work, on account of fallen arches, and I have two girls, sixteen and seventeen, who can get Summer work as waitresses in New Hampshire if they had suitable clothing. It has been all I could do to keep them in school, with only one dress each. They need underwear and some Summer dresses suitable to work in. I will be both glad and grateful to anyone who can help me. MRS. B. A.

Others in Need

Mrs. Bessie G. asks some readers to give her work, such as cleaning by the day, for her child's sake. Can give best of references and willing to work.

Mrs. A. G., old lady without any means, would appreciate clothing for herself, size 46, shoes 6. Must pay $2 a week for room and cannot work. Would like to do some plain sewing and braid mats. Lives in Woonsocket, R. I.

Alfred, 22, alone in Boston, would like to find a place to board and room in some family where there is a young man around his age.

Mrs. J., widow in need, asks for clothing for herself, size 40, and for girl, fourteen. Would also appreciate some old curtains, dishes, etc. Can make over anything.

Mrs. J. D. appeals for clothing for her five children, girls eleven, seven, five and three, and boy ten. Husband out of work for a long time. She would like a Summer coat, size 50.

Mrs. Anna F. would like to adopt a little boy two years of age. Will have a good home and best of care.

Mrs. E. B. L., young mother with four children, expects the stork again in the Fall and would appreciate infants' clothing.

Mrs. A. G. I., mother of a large family, husband out of work, would appreciate a baby carriage.

THE RHYMING OPTIMIST

By Aline Michaelis.

THERE are souls that are lofty temples for the shrines of man's noblest thought, where love's lights are bright candles burning, where life's highest works are wrought. There the souls like a squalid chamber in a house that decay has claimed so dark that no man may enter, except he go grieved and changed. There are souls that are sunlight-flooded, there are souls that are haunts of gloom, splendid souls where great deeds have budded, coward souls with their coward's doom. But only one soul is a garden where God's breezes blow undefiled, where the bright birds sing as in Eden's bowers, and that is the soul of a child! Oh, no shadow from clouddand passes where the bee by the rose is beguiled, and no breath of the storm stirs the grasses in the garden-bay soul of a child!

BACKGROUND NEEDED FOR SUCCESS

By DR. FRANK CRANE

IN an address by John Franklin Crowell, former president of Trinity College, now Duke University, at a meeting of the Metropolitan Alumni Association in New York, he said:

"I recall the criticism of some of our British friends on some of our university methods. I said, 'What do you think of our men who come over here (to England) as Rhodes scholars, and others who come to attend some one of your universities?' He said, 'As far as your economic students are concerned, I find they know all about wool, cotton, lead, zinc and steel. They are specialists and thoroughly up with their one thing—but they have no background. They have not that background of intellectual judgment of principles which would have weight among practical men.'"

This calls attention to the fact that a man may be very proficient in his specialty and yet fail to attain success because of his lack of background.

Background means that general culture and information which enables a man to correlate his own activities with those of the past.

It means a knowledge of the history of the past. For instance, many people are led away by some new religious fad simply because they have never made themselves acquainted with the history of the philosophy. They do not know that very same notion has been tried out hundreds of years ago and found wanting.

A boy should go to school or university more for general culture, more to lay a background for his future activities than to prepare for some one thing.

THE MAGIC CURVES OF SCIENCE

By Garrett P. Serviss.

Noted Astronomer and Writer on Scientific Topics of Popular Interest.

"Would it be too much trouble for you to explain what a 'parallax' is; also a 'parabola?' I am anxious to know, so I can read your articles with a better knowledge of the subject. 'Inverse square' is another term foreign to me."—L. J. H.

I THINK that this request is very reasonable in view of fast spreading curiosity concerning discoveries of science that can be appreciated only if one knows the meaning of such terms as those that L. J. H. inquires about.

Parallax is a difference in the direction of an object as viewed from two different points; as, for instance, a star observed in turn from opposite sides of the earth's orbit, or the moon observed from opposite sides of the earth. The parallax is measured by the angle between the two lines of sight. Our Figure 1 shows this graphically.

You will understand that when the angles of the triangle aMb, or any similar triangle, have been ascertained, the distance to the being also known, then simple trigonometry gives the distance from E to M.

I have also drawn, in Figure 2, the curve called the parabola. Everybody ought to know the elementary facts about these remarkable geometrical forms, which play an enormous part in making science the mistress of the civilized world.

There would be no mathematics and consequently no exact science but for what has been learned about the properties of four particular curves, viz: The Circle, the Ellipse, the Parabola and the Hyperbola.

A circle is a closed curve, every part of which is equally distant from a point within called the centre.

The ellipse is a more or less elongated closed curve, having two points within called the foci, both of which lie on the straight line that forms the longer axis of the ellipse.

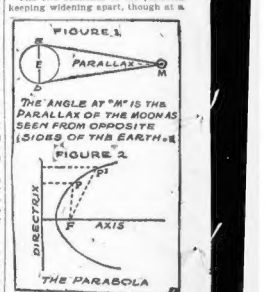
In every ellipse the sum of the distances of any point on the circumference from the two foci is equal to the length of the longer, or major, axis. An ellipse is not simply an oval. You may draw a hundred ovals not one of which will possess the peculiar properties of the ellipse. The paths of all the planets around the sun are ellipses.

We now come to the parabola, shown in Fig. 2. Its peculiarity is that every point of the curve is equally distant from a point within called the focus, and from a straight line outside running at right angles to the axis, called the directrix.

If you measure in the figure the distance of the points P and P1, respectively, from the focus F and the line of the directrix, or if you similarly measure any other points anywhere on the curve, you will find, barring slight inaccuracies of drawing, that you are dealing with a parabola, and not with an accidental curve that has no character to lose.

By making a larger figure, and following the directions just given, you can produce quite an accurate parabola.

The two branches of the parabola keeping widening apart, though at a decreasing rate, so that after a time they seem to be becoming parallel. But they never do become parallel, and never meet again, so that the parabola is not a closed curve, and if a celestial body traveled around the sun in a parabola it would go away and never come back.



The hyperbola is also an open curve, whose two branches, however, never tend to become nearly parallel like those of the parabola. A body, such as a comet, traveling in a hyperbola near the sun, would also go away never to return.

I have not space to describe the hyperbola, but I hope that what I have said and shown will induce you, and many others, to become better acquainted with these things.

The inverse square law is best made plain with an example. The brightness of a star varies inversely as the square of the distance. The square of a number is that number multiplied once by itself.

Let the distance be doubled. Well, the square of 2 is 4. Taken inversely, i. e., upside down, that becomes ¼; therefore at twice the distance the star appears one-quarter as bright.

ONCE-OVERS

WHEN IT IS EASY TO QUARREL AND MOLE HILLS BECOME MOUNTAINS

Children are irritable in hot weather.

When husband arrives he finds conditions far from ideal.

If he brings a scowl the last straw is added to the burden of an over-wrought wife.

It is so easy to quarrel when days and nights are hot.

It should be the aim of husband and wife to be more lenient then.

There should be greater allowance for an unkempt house or for a worn-out and tired father.

If life partners were more tolerant, expecting less in hot weather, many a matrimonial craft would sail along more smoothly.

Fewer demands should be made and trifles should be overlooked when the thermometer soars.

Wives should not plan a lot of work for husbands to do after the evening meal.

It is hard enough to go at full speed during the day and man must work to hold his job in hot weather.
